Files for bankruptcy

It's curtains for the Monterey Film Festival

By DAVID LELAND

CUT TO the end, let the closing credits roll — the Monterey Film Festival has finished after only two runs.

After spending the summer begging forgiveness from 82 peninsula creditors to the tune of $180,000, the film festival will declare bankruptcy within 30 days, according to Michael Albov, film festival board president.

The debt is the direct result of last February's festival, at which time spending far exceeded revenue expected from the three-day event.

'Other than some angel coming along with a lot of money, I don't know how a film festival of this magnitude could be put on (in Monterey). I really question whether there is local community support for more film programs than already exist on the peninsula.'

— Michael Albov
— Board president

While some film buffs blamed the loss on the festival's lavish spending tactics, such as ordering pizzas to be flown in for a festival party from Spago in Los Angeles rather than from a peninsula vendor, Albov disagreed.

Albov said that, in part, the festival was unable to sustain itself during the second year because there was no corporate sponsor.

In 1987, Charles Chrietzberg, owner of La Reina Chardonnay Winery, donated $75,000 to get the festival underway. In return, his winery logo was placed on festival products.

"Other than some angel coming along with a lot of money, I don't know how a film festival of this magnitude could be put on (in Monterey)," Albov said. "I really question whether there is local community support for more film programs than already exist on the peninsula."

Albov was referring to occasional film showings at venues such as Monterey Peninsula College.

Albov further pointed the finger at local creditors who were unwilling to work with the festival, fewer theaters in which to hold screenings, political in-fighting among past boardmembers and a reticence by Clint Eastwood to become involved in the festival.

Albov said that he personally wrote Eastwood two letters asking for insight into how to get the festival back on track. He claimed that neither letter was answered.

"I wasn't asking for a check," he said. "I was asking for advice; I respect the guy's business intuition and savvy."

Sue Hutchinson, a spokeswoman for Eastwood at Malpaso Productions in Burbank, and former aide to Eastwood when he was mayor of Carmel, said that she returned several phone calls to the festival.

She added that Eastwood purposefully steered clear of the festival.

"He wanted to help in any way he could," she said. "But he didn't want the festival to rely on him."

Regardless of Eastwood's involvement, Albov said that the festival never had support from the film industry.

"There was a sense that we didn't have big support from the Hollywood community, which I think is essential," he said. "It's ludicrous to move forward with a film festival when the Hollywood community doesn't have the time of day."

While the festival did pay tribute to James Stewart at this year's festival, there was a noticeable absence of modern-day film stars attending the event.

The only participation by film industry professionals took place during two educational forums and some of the parties.

•

FOR THE 82 creditors listed by the festival in the accounts payable ledger, the news is not good, with film festival assets coming in far below the amount owed.

Albov listed T-shirts, sweatshirts, buttons, empty film reels and some donated artwork as assets.

"I think it works out to pennies on the dollar," Albov said. "I don't expect that there will be any significant resources to creditors."

Also coming up losers in the festival's proposed Chapter 11 action are the 26 charter members, who, in 1986, each contributed $2,000 toward making the festival work. In return they were each given two passes that enabled them to get into every event free for the life of the festival.

Charter members will be listed as creditors, Albov said.

A lawsuit filed by David Bean will also be listed in the list of accounts payable, Albov said. Bean served as executive director of the first Monterey Film Festival, which concluded with a $37,000 profit.

Bean filed a $3,000 lawsuit alleging that his contract was not honored by the film festival board. Bean claimed that he resigned as of May 1, 1987 and was barred from the festival office after submitting his resignation in March of that year.

Last summer there appeared to be a mending of old wounds, when Bean volunteered to head up an "arts and purpose" board to keep the festival going.

At that time Albov was attempting to separate the business factions of the festival from the artistic side, which some had blamed for the festival's poor business decisions.

But Bean told The Pine Cone that after lining up several industry professionals, he was asked to cease speaking with news media and that the board never met to discuss the festival's direction.

Albov said that it simply didn't make sense for the arts and purpose board to meet until the future of the festival had been decided.

"We weren't going to have those people spend one bit of their valuable time unless we were convinced there would be a film festival next year," Albov said.

Once the Monterey Film Festival declares bankruptcy, that name cannot be used again, Albov said.

"I think that, as a practical matter, the Monterey Film Festival will no longer be in existence," he said.

•

THE FESTIVAL'S demise brings to a close a history of behind-the-scenes conflict that has, at times, provided as much drama as a good thriller.

Even though it has only been three years since the festival was conceived, the festival has gone through three executive directors and numerous changes in board members.

Shortly after the first season in which the festival finished with a profit of $37,000, Bean was fired as executive director after some members of the board accused him of "grandstanding" with the news media.

The festival then was skipperless until several months later, in May, when Sharon Lawrence was imported from Hollywood to provide leadership as executive director.

Lawrence was then fired when the film board was reorganized. She filed a lawsuit for back wages and settled out of court with the festival.

Her firing was immediately followed by the resignation of board president Alan Weber and vice president Theresa Canepa.

Next, Mikel Pippi, executive director of the Frohman Academy for Musical Theater Education, was hired by a newly composed board.

It was under Pippi's direction that the festival acquired its indebtedness.

Pippi was in the Soviet Union this week and was unavailable for comment.

For Bean, who was instrumental in realizing the first festival, news of the bankruptcy hit an especially raw nerve. He chastised those guiding the non-profit film festival for their actions.

"The problem was total fiscal irresponsibility," he said. "Velveeta cheese has more substance and integrity than most of the elected officials and civic leaders who served on the film festival board and who are directly responsible for this abuse of the public's trust."

In addition to business people and artists, two Monterey County Supervisors also sat on the board.

'Velveeta cheese has more substance and integrity than most of the elected officials and civic leaders who served on the film festival board and who are directly responsible for this abuse of the public's trust.'

— David Bean
— Former director

Lawrence also pointed her ire at the board.

"I feel it's shameful that this board continued to take its responsibility so lightly," she said. "The sad thing is this bankruptcy action puts a blot on the entire community and they don't deserve it."

She questioned whether the board had considered what might be best for the peninsula when making its decisions.

"For them integrity doesn't seem to exist," she said, adding that during her tenure she had many disagreements with the board on proper protocol. "For me trying to work with the board members was the most horrifying and disillusioning experience of my life."

She also took offense at Albov's comments that the Hollywood community did not support the festival.

"During my tenure there was wonderful support from the Hollywood community; they were more than helpful in Hollywood," she said. "Hollywood didn't see this as anything that could help the business of the film. It was a personal interest, they said it was like 'Getting to see movies in paradise.' "

With that in mind, Lawrence said the peninsula provides an ideal setting for a film festival — but proper planning must be in order for it to work.

"They would have to do a very good marketing job to get people who love film from San Diego to San Francisco to spend a weekend at a film festival," she said. "I would have to disagree with their hindsight. These are things that business people plan before a festival. And certainly before spending other people's money."

Lawrence also took issue with the idea that in order to have a successful film festival you need to have numerous stars.

"They took advantage of living in an area where there are hard-working celebrities who ask no more than to want to fit in," she said. "They wanted to use those people."

She added that contacting movie stars was a constant source of strife when she was on the board.

"I was very much against hounding the celebrities in this area and said 'No' to riding on someone else's professional coattails," she said.

•

INITIALLY, ALBOV said, the festival was doing quite well in persuading local merchants to forgive debts.

"We had $60,000 of willingness to forgive but it petered out at that point," he said, referring to commitments by large businesses such as the Hyatt Regency Monterey, which was owed almost $25,000 from the festival. "While it started like gangbusters it got difficult."

Albov added that businesses who had forgiven the festival will be included as creditors when the festival files for bankruptcy.

And while several large corporations were able to write off the festival debt, the real loser in the story turns out to be the small businesses who believed in the event and extended services on credit.

"I think it's a very poor thing to do in an area as small as we are," said Toni Miller, manager of Copy King in Monterey.

Miller, whose store is owed $1,171 by the festival, said that the festival tried to beg forgiveness principally from large corporations.

"I know I'm small," she said. "But I'm still here."

Even though she is coming out a loser in the deal, Miller said she is sorry to see the festival go.

"I'm sorry it's going down," she said, adding that the entire operation became too large to fit the needs of the peninsula. "If it had been kept local like we started off it would have been nice."

Hatton Canyon No. 1

Dear Editor:

Such destruction contemplated,
Know I'll be berated, but
10,000 trees
Axed, chopped and burned
So traffic can move more quickly
For a couple of years or so
And then return to its current flow.
Which it will do — it's true!
Who benefits? Who makes a buck?
'Twould be a grand piece of luck
If we could say, one fine day,
The plans for the Freeway have been
Axed, chopped and burned
The concrete, the overpasses they have been spurned
And a solution more apt, more fitting
Is found
One that won't cover, won't destory
So much ground.

No on 100-106

Dear Editor:

Law-making, by "peoples' initiatives," is dangerous business; with far-reaching and often destructive consequences. This is particularly true of Propositions 100 through 106 on the November ballot.

The publicity on the fight between auto insurance companies and auto-injury trial lawyers is slanted, misleading, and often a blatant cover-up of critically important data. In short, the complications and complexities of these "initiatives" make effective decisions improbable.

I have attended seminars where proponents made presentations of Propositions 100 (insurance regulation) and 104 (no-fault/excessive litigation). I have secured copies of these initiatives and carefully studied them. And, upon reading further printed analyses of the other propositions, I have concluded that they are all "BAD LAW"!

My attorney friend, J.R., has the solution to the paradox of 100 thru 106. Vote "No" on Propositions 100 through 106!

Then, contact our state legislators and request that they create appropriate law through the normal legislative process (as they should have done in the first place, despite the pressures of powerful and influential lobbyists); to effect: (a) moderate accountability of automobile insurance companies; (b) appropriate free-market competitive premium pricing; (c) established limits on auto injury court litigation.

Let's do it properly and intelligently!

MAYOR'S REPORT

By Jean Grace

Too many choices

DEAR NEIGHBORS:

Please allow me to share with you a letter I sent to the Carmel Community and Cultural Commission regarding its valuable upcoming study session on the State of the Arts in Carmel. As you all know, our days in this community are filled with many wonderful choices for expanding our horizons.

Dear Roger and members of the Commission:

In July I agreed to attend an important conference to be held all day on the 22nd of October 1988. This is a very significant meeting for the City of Carmel-by-the-Sea because it involves our most influential neighbor: the Pacific Ocean. I feel that it would be derelict for our city to be uninvolved in the "'88 State of the Bay" conference, and I am disappointed that the State of the Arts in Carmel study session is scheduled on the same day. Please forgive my absence.

I hope other council members and many of our citizens will take part in your important study session. I look forward to learning more about the state of the arts within our community.

I anticipate a great learning experience for all of us on many important subjects on Saturday, the 22nd of October. I wish you success with your study session.

Sincerely yours,

Jean Grace

GUEST EDITORIAL

Two steps backward

By The Board of Directors
Carmel Residents Association

ON OCT. 4th Carmel took two steps backward in its struggle against traffic and parking gridlock.

In considering the Carmel Residents Association appeal of the planning commission's approval of the Leidig/Williams commercial development on Seventh and San Carlos, the Carmel City Council passed up its first opportunity to require realistic and adequate parking for a commercial development as mandated by the 1988 General Plan. With its eight shops and two apartments and only nine parking places, this latest development will inevitably add to the parking demand in that section of Carmel.

Attorney Joel Franklin, former dean of the Monterey College of Law, presented the CRA's appeal with a well-reasoned, logical analysis. He emphasized that present parking requirements are based on a 1974 parking ordinance which is not in compliance with the 1988 General Plan — an opinion supported by the city council's order in June and again in September to the planning commission to prepare "posthaste" a new parking ordinance.

Because approval of the number of parking spaces in the Leidig/Williams development is based on the 1974 ordinance and because the council does not have any "findings" to validate the legal application of the 1974 ordinance, attorney Franklin argued that if the city council failed to uphold the CRA appeal, the council would be acting illegally. City Attorney Don Freeman several times cautioned that the council's decision must be in compliance with the 1988 General Plan.

As evidence that the CRA's appeal is not directed against the Leidig/Williams project but rather in support of the new General Plan, Mr. Franklin stated that the CRA would be satisfied if the project proceeded with the commitment to comply with a parking management plan when it is adopted. In the event that his plan were not approved by the end of two years, the CRA would ask that the Leidig/Williams project conform to the parking code in effect at that time.

To our surprise and disappointment, Mr. Williams (chairman of the committee responsible to formulate the parking management plan), refused to accept this compromise. And the council responded by accepting Mr. Williams' plea for "equal justice for the Leidig family" while rejecting Mr. Franklin's follow-up request for "equal justice for all citizens of Carmel." By a 4-1 vote the council denied the CRA appeal, Jim Wright casting the only vote in favor of our position.

Carmel's second step backward came with a subsequent vote on the staff's recommendation that the Leidig/Williams' eight shops be held to a mix of three service and five retail businesses. Mayor Jean Grace cast the deciding vote, defeating that portion of our appeal, with Jim Wright joined by Ken White supporting this request. This second vote has set a dangerous precedent. It will now be very difficult for the city to require developers to provide for service businesses so essential to the needs of Carmel's residents. During a recess, Mr. Williams said that his project was too expensive to permit lower rent for service businesses.

PB Co. unveils plans for 11 building sites

By DAVID LELAND

AFTER MORE than a year of study, the Pebble Beach Co. is ready to reveal plans for its Planned Residential Program in the Del Monte Forest.

While 21 sites are specified for building in the Del Monte Forest Land Use Plan, the Pebble Beach Co.'s plans call for initial construction on only 11 of those, according to Larry Seeman, vice president of planning and development.

It is unclear when the additional sites will be subdivided, Seeman said.

Particulars concerning the buildout will be presented by representatives of the Pebble Beach Co. during four information workshops given by the Del Monte Forest Property Owners.

"Similar presentations will be repeated at each workshop so that the same information will be available to everyone regardless of which workshop they attend," said Ted Lawrence, president of DMFPO.

Workshops are slated for:

- 7 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Oct. 25 in the auditorium of Robert Louis Stevenson School.
- 9:30 a.m. to noon Saturday, Oct. 29 in the RLS auditorium.
- 7 to 9:30 p.m. Tuesday, Nov. 1 in the RLS auditorium.
- 7:30 to 10 p.m. Thursday, Nov. 17 at the regular semi-annual DMFPO meeting in the RLS auditorium.

Seeman said that, while the land use plans allows for 442 residential units to be built on the 11 sites, the Pebble Beach Co. is proposing only 359, or a 20-percent reduction.

The sites involved in planned construction include: three areas of Gowen Cypress, Huckleberry Hill, three areas of Middle Fork, two areas of Spyglass Cypress, Pescadero and an area abutting the equestrian center.

"Nine of the 11 areas are planned for lots of various sizes, ranging from clustered lots about one-fourth acre to estate lots as large as 3 acres," Seeman said. "The size of the lots in each area was largely determined by existing residential lot sizes in adjacent areas."

The buildout was reduced by taking into account the varying styles of neighborhoods and adapting the lot size to fit the area, Seeman said.

Two of the 11 areas will be for "Planned Unit Developments," which differ from traditional lot subdivisions in that specific building locations and designs are predetermined at the time of subdivision.

One of those developments includes a senior life care housing program near the northern portion of Huckleberry Hill.

Seeman said the proposed 78-unit facility will be similar to housing offered at Carmel Valley Manor and Hacienda Carmel.

"Right now the only choice people have is to move out of the forest," said Seeman, referring to the idea that some elderly people cannot maintain their homes due to physical and health constraints. "This is a way to meet the needs of the people of the forest."

•

ALSO INCLUDED in the Pebble Beach Co.'s proposal are 47 units of inclusionary housing. Monterey County mandates that 15 percent of a subdivision include moderate-income homes.

It should be noted the 15 percent is not part of the total buildout of 359, but is added to that number to come up with the figure.

Plans call for clustered townhouses to be located near the Pebble Beach Community Services District offices.

Seeman pointed out that while the total area of the subdivision encompasses about 330 acres, 107 of those will be preserved as open space, with an average density of 1.18-units per acre.

He said that the Pebble Beach Co. will probably put about 75 lots a year on the market, with the total subdivision taking about four years to complete.

While Seeman said preliminary traffic studies indicate that forest roads would not be affected by the building, there is currently a shortage of water.

But the Pebble Beach Co. and numerous agencies are currently negotitating a $13 million reclamation plant that is projected to free up more than 800 acre feet of drinkable water.

The company has discussed funding the plant with other peninsula agencies in exchange for a portion of the available water.

After the workshops take place, the Pebble Beach Co. will attempt to respond to all questions and plans to submit an application to the county by the end of the year, Seeman said.

The county will then advertise for an environmental impact consultant. After a consultant is contracted, the work will take about six months.

During the latter part of next year, there will be numerous public hearings at the county planning commission, Monterey County Board of Supervisors and, possibly, the state Coastal Commission.

THE PEBBLE Beach Co. has named 11 sites in the Del Monte Forest where initial building will take place over the next four years. Plans call for 359 units on about 330 acres, with a density of 1.18 units per acre. The map's darkened areas include proposed building sites and include: Gowen Cypress (F I, II,III), Huckleberry Hill (G), Middle Fork (H I, II), Spyglass Cypress (N, O), Pescadero (P) and an area abutting the equestrian center (U).

New bridge design proposed for south end of freeway

By DAVID LELAND

NEW PLANS by Caltrans for the proposed $26 million Hatton Canyon Freeway now show one bridge spanning the Carmel River, with a northbound offramp at Rio Road being removed from the plan.

The newest design comes as the result of a meeting last week in which representatives from Caltrans, Federal Highway Administration, Monterey County, Coastal Commission staff, Carmel city staff, and the citizens advisory committee, tried to find a solution to the latest stalemate.

Last month the Coastal Commission staff found that if Caltrans built a bridge across the river and the county had its existing bridge, it would violate the state Coastal Act by encouraging growth south of the Carmel River.

"We're making progress, but everyone's pretty resistant," said Tom Pollock, Caltrans district director.

Pollock said new plans indicate that the highway directly north of the bridge will be widened and a left-turn lane installed near Olive Road, which would then lead to the existing Highway 1. Traffic could then travel north to Rio Road.

The northbound offramp at Rio Road, which was penciled in the plans after Assemblyman Sam Farr told Caltrans that it was essential for merchants at The Crossroads, has now been deemed a safety hazard by FHA, Pollock said.

Pollock said that Caltrans and FHA is worried that traffic heading south on the Hatton Canyon Freeway would go across the bridge, make a U-turn and then take the northbound offramp if the ramp is left in.

Currently plans show drivers making a right turn from the new freeway onto the old highway, travelling north and then making a right turn onto Rio Road to enter The Crossroads.

Pollock said that he is aware of the sentiment at the shopping center.

"We're sorry, but we're unable to meet everybody's needs," he said. "This is as close as we can get."

When asked if The Crossroad's concerns had been discussed at last week's meeting, Pollock said "no."

"It didn't come up as a great concern of the group," he said. "But then nobody was there to represent the shopping center."

But 5th District Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman said that a safe road should be the ultimate goal of the planners.

"The road needs to be designed to serve the public at large," she said. "You can't have the road lead to one neighborhood or one group — the traffic goes in every direction."

She said that many times people forget that current conditions are unsafe and often snarled during peak hours and during the summer months.

"This road is going to be for everyone; the design has to reflect that," she said. "Groups have tried to redesign it for their own needs. It's to protect residents from the onslaught of tourist traffic."

•

IN ORDER for design changes to take place and be entered into the record before the Coastal Commission hears the matter this December, a new application must be filed.

"We plan to resubmit an application to the Coastal Commission," Pollock said. "We're still shooting for the December hearing."

He said that by late October or early November the coastal staff should have the new design.

It will take three to four weeks of study for the coastal staff to re-evaluate any new design, according to Rick Hyman, coastal planner.

Hyman said that he has also suggested to Pollock that Caltrans conduct more public information meetings to defuse any misinformation regarding the project.

Strasser Kauffman said that she has also urged Pollock to make Caltrans' plans available to the public.

"There's still a great deal of misinformation about the former design," said Strasser Kauffman, referring to Caltrans' original drawings in the environmental impact statement. "I've encouraged Caltrans to really put some effort into the public review process."

Hyman said he doubted whether the coastal staff would take further public testimony before the Coastal Commission's December gathering.

Study session on residential codes rescheduled

By NANCY HILLS

THE CARMEL Planning Commission postponed its Oct. 19 study on residential code, instead incorporating the item into its upcoming Oct. 26 meeting.

The special workshop is not a public hearing, but the commission will receive a planning department staff report along with a memo from City Administrator Doug Schmitz outlining the city council's directives to the commission.

The commission's meeting begins at 3:30 p.m., Wednesday, Oct. 26 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

The residential workshop is part of the regular agenda.

The city council, in a special meeting Sept. 27, made 14 motions directing the commission to consider new standards for height, setbacks, design and lot coverage for new houses and additions.

The review includes a discussion on merging some of the smaller lots in Carmel that now make up a single building site under common ownership, which could affect some of 4,000-square-foot lots which are standard in Carmel.

Issues the council asked the commission to review include:

• A new residential ordinance similar to the recently approved second-story ordinance for the commercial district.

The new commercial ordinance that imposes a sliding scale, increasing required setbacks as the floor area on the second story increase.

The purpose of a sliding scale is to reduce the appearance of mass or bulk of a home.

• Setback variations to encourage flexibility in the building outline.

The city now requires a 3-foot setback on sideyards and a 15-foot setback from the front property line. The back of the house must be 3 feet from the back property line if the home is less than 15 feet in height. If it is more than 15 feet, the setback is 15 feet.

The council expressed concern that a 3-foot setback along the side of the home would create a straight up and back canyon effect between homes.

That unrelieved line from the front of the house to the back of the house can create a feeling of mass and bulk, particularly if the house next door is also 3 feet from the property line.

Also, roof overhangs are allowed up to 18 inches from the 3-foot setback, so two homes can actually be only 3 feet from each other.

• Review rearyard setbacks so 3 feet is no longer the minimum.

• Revise the current design code to meet changes in the general plan or propose reinstating four provisions taken out during the last changes of the general plan.

The revised general plan eliminated the requirements that a new home should not block a neighbor's private views, sun rights, impinge on privacy of the neighbors and "protect and preserve the light, air and open space of surrounding properties..."

• Develop a process where new applicants are made aware of the importance of the upper tree canopy to Carmel. A house design should preserve the existing trees or provide adequate space for new upper canopy trees. The council proposed the city forester should be a part of the building design review process.

• Consider lowering the maximum "plate height" of a building. The plate height is the height of a building if it has a perfectly flat roof. The intention is to lower the height of many of second-story homes.

• Expand the beach overlay district to the west side of Carmelo Street and the northern and southern boundaries of the city at Second and Santa Lucia avenues.

The beach overlay zone permits a maximum height of 18 feet. The maximum height in the rest of the residential zone is 24 feet.

• Discuss amendments to site coverage and allowed floor area.

The current standard permits a house a maximum of 1,800 square feet on a 4,000-square-foot lot. That square footage can be distributed between the first and second floor or all in one single-story house.

• Consider a hillside slope ordinance. The city now requires that any application for a home on a 30 percent or greater slope get a use permit. There are, however, no standards for the commission to review such a permit.

• Consider reinstating a pre-1985 ordinance that requires height to be measured from the average of the grade of a lot. Currently, the city measures the height from the highest point on the lot.

Carmel council to meet Oct. 25

THE CARMEL City Council meets Tuesday in a special study session to update itself on the city's water ordinances, city water consumption and the status of other peninsula water issues.

The council will meet at 4 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 25 in Carmel City Council Chambers.

Associate Planner Brian Roseth will review the present water use ordinance and the status of numerous other government agencies' water projects, including the proposed New San Clemente Dam, reclamation plant and the environmental impact report on the Monterey Peninsula Water Management District's allocation system.

CITY OF CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA

TRAFFIC SAFETY MODIFICATIONS

The following traffic safety modifications were adopted by the City Council at its meeting of 4 October 1988 and will be installed on 1 November 1988:

1. A "no parking" zone will be installed on the south side of Third Avenue for a distance of thirty feet east of Junipero Avenue.
2. Stop signs will be installed to control east and westbound traffic on Third Avenue at Junipero Avenue on a one-year trial basis.
3. Stop signs will be installed on the westbound lanes of Ocean Avenue at Monte Verde Street for a one-year trial basis.
4. The right lane of westbound traffic on Ocean Avenue will be designated and marked for "right-turn-only" for a one-year trial basis.

Please familiarize yourself with the location of these new safety measures. The stop signs will be installed for one year as no final decision on the signs will be reched until completion of a traffic and circulation plan as required by the City's General Plan.

Water board to go over its rationing plan once more

THE MONTEREY Peninsula Water Management District board will once again address its rationing plan and alternatives to the proposed dam to be included in the New San Clemente Dam environmental impact statement at tonight's (Thursday) meeting.

The board will continue its discussion about rationing and probably decide on the provisions for Phase III of its four-phase rationing program when it meets at 7:30 p.m., Thursday, Oct. 20 in the Community Room at The Crossroads shoping center.

The board voted at its October board meeting to reduce the Phase III water use cutback from 25 percent to 20 percent.

The board also voted to include allowing a single-person household 50 percent more water than the ration for each person in a home with more than one person.

The proposed ordinance would cut commercial users by 20 percent from their water use in 1987 as recorded by California-American Water Co.

Residents would receive a ration per person in the home. According to district staff, that ration would allow 82 gallons per day for every person in a single-family detached home. In apartments or condominiums, each person would receive 46 gallons per day. Those numbers are based on reducing the average water consumption per resident in the district by 20 percent.

Single-person households would receive 122 gallons per day in detached homes and 68 gallons per day in apartments and condominiums.

Those numbers could change, depending upon the provisions included in the ordinance.

The commercial formula has been criticized because it rewards businesses that wasted water last year and actually gives some of the hotels on the peninsula a much greater portion per room ration than individual residents.

One major item that could change the numbers for residents is allowing different water allotments per person in different geographic areas. Pebble Beach and Carmel Valley, on average, both use more water per household than the residents in other peninsula jurisdictions.

The board will also discuss that issue at the meeting.

The board also determined that no water meter permit moratorium will be imposed during Phase III.

Garden seminar scheduled Oct. 25

HOW DOES your garden grow — especially during a drought?

The Monterey Peninsula Water Management District is sponsoring a free landscape seminar to help people prepare their gardens for drought conditions and rationing.

The seminar is scheduled for 6 p.m., Tuesday, Oct. 25 in the Nautilus Room in the Asilomar Conference Center.

Topics will include:

- How to protect your existing garden, including mulching, soil amendments, watering schedules and digging water basins.
- Drip irrigation systems — how to design and install them.
- A slide presentation by Barrie Coate, former director of Saratoga Horticultural Foundation, about appropriate plants for California's Central Coast.

Guest editorial

There is a ray of hope. The planning commission at its Oct. 12 meeting adopted a reasonable, realistic interim parking ordinance — one parking space per 600 square feet. Having ordered the planning commission to bring forth such an ordinance, the city council now has the responsibility to adopt this ordinance and thereby take the first step forward in the alleviation of Carmel's parking problems.

In view of this new ordinance — which the city council surely will approve — the CRA has decided not to proceed with legal action in support of its appeal.

We feel it should be noted that if this parking ordinance had been approved months ago and therefore applied to the Leidig/Williams project, the CRA would not have had reason to file its appeal.

Hymnfest set for Oct. 23

ELCA and LCMS Lutherans from the tri-county area will join in a hymnfest, "We Sing One Common Lord," to be celebrated on Sunday, Oct. 23 at 4 p.m. at Bethlehem Lutheran Church, 800 Cass St., Monterey.

Instrumentalists, a bell choir, and two chapel choirs will join congregational singing that features hymns from pre-Reformation times to the present. A short reception in the social hall will follow.

The public is invited. For further information, please contact Bethlehem Lutheran Church, 373-1523.

Sand castle contest set for this Sunday

BREAK OUT the shovels and buckets, it's time again for the Great Sand Castle Contest.

This year's popular annual event will be held starting at 9 a.m. Sunday, Oct. 23 at Carmel Beach between 10th and 13th streets. Judging begins at 1:30 p.m. and ends about 3...p.m. that is.

As is always there are no fees or entry forms, very few rules and one theme: "Neptune's Closet." Awards will be given in five categories: Novice Sand Pile (up to 12 years old); Advanced Sand Box (up to 99 years, those over 99 will automatically win an award); Theme Award (best interpretation); Grand Sand Award (best overall entry); and Sour Grapes (if you get it, you deserve it).

Some important guidelines include: leave your dog and commercial messages at home; no trinkets or artificial colors, only natural objects; be serious about bribing judges ("No cheap stuff"); and make sure you set up on the right part of the beach.

Youth center is hoping to raise capital funds with wild auction

By MAC McDONALD

HOW ABOUT a dance with Doris Day, a bit part in a Clint Eastwood movie, a Moroccan chair from Randolph Hearst or a vacation to New Zealand, Australia or New York?

No, it's not Let's Make a Deal, but something close to it, it's the Second Annual Spaghetti Western Auction to be held at 6 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21 at the Mission Ranch in Carmel.

Last year's fund-raiser for the Carmel Youth Center raised more than $58,000; the youth center board of directors is shooting for $100,000 this year, and one peek inside the auction book and you won't doubt they'll reach it.

"Anyone who came to last year's auction will never forget it," says Ave Lallos, board president. "Of course we fondly remember the cows, pigs and sheep in the auction room and the helicopter landing in the field at sunset. But this year we are promising a wild, festive and craaazy time for each and everyone."

Here's the lineup: Silent auction from 6 to 7:30 p.m.; live auction from 7:30 to 8:30; Western barbecue at 8; and dancing to the Country Road Band from 8 to 11. Tickets are $50 per person and includes barbecue, complimentary beer and wine, no-host bar and shooters bar. There is also free taxi service home for those so inclined.

As for the auction items, they include, not only the aforementioned, but a bit part in the new television series China Beach, hot air balloon rides, Mission Ranch farmhouse for one night, a cellular car phone, golf lessons, trips to New Mexico, Puerto Vallarta and Palm Springs, hotel accomodations, Beach Boys concert tickets and backstage passes, seven-day cruise to Hawaii, signed posters, wetsuits, designer lingerie, tai chi lessons, perfumes and colognes, romantic getaways, lift tickets, fishing trips, 49er jerseys, scuba lessons, mountain bikes, golf, shopping sprees, 3 bow ties, a pair of shoes and a partridge in a pear tree.

You think that's all? Not on your life. There's books and posters by Bill Bates, wines and champagnes, carpet cleaning, pit passes to the 1989 Miami Grand Prix, a Walt Disney animation cel, a gold putter, and a baseball signed by Joltin' Joe DiMaggio. And that's only about half of the auction book.

For information on this event call the Carmel Youth Center at 626-1255. Tickets are limited and are going fast. Some may be available at the door on the night of the event.

Carefree car care

IT HAD been only eight months since I'd washed my car, so color me surprised when the local Val Strough dealer subtly suggested it was time I allow their service department to "detail" it! It hadn't occurred to me that, when I dropped the car off for servicing or mechanical repair, I could also have its appearance "repaired."

Needless to say, I followed Val Strough's suggestion, and they nearly turned my Downright Disgrace into a showroom beauty. Upon investigation, I've learned that most local dealerships have on-premises washing and interior/exterior detailing services available (for a price, of course); most have shuttle service for your convenience. So next time you're having your engine tuned up or your tires rotated, request some TLC (Tender Loving Cleaning) while you're at it.

If that's not convenient for you, you're still not off the hook. There are a number of car care service shops located from Marina to Carmel Valley, listed in the Yellow Pages under "Automobile Detailing" and "Car Washing and Polishing." Some operate in conjunction with a typical car wash establishment; others specialize in only detailing. Most offer pick-up and delivery.

Now, if none of the foregoing are convenient for you, remember the phantom business card mentioned in the last BPF column? It was dropped off by auto appearance specialist Rick Christman of Waxing Elegant (call Information for phone number). He and his wife, Marie, recently moved to the area after operating a mobile detail service in southern California for more than 10 years. I made an appointment with them to come to my office, hoping they could work miracles with my husband's 10-year-old car. They did! They carry their own water and generator—a truly mobile service, one of few such services on the peninsula. Talk about carefree car care! It was wonderful to do nothing more than call for an appointment and leave the rest to the experts. Of course, if you choose this method, make sure it's allowed in your parking lot.

And don't hesitate to call a number of these car care specialists for rates (which seem to range from $40 for exterior wax only, to $135 for "the works"), methods (high-speed buff vs. orbital vs. hand-rub), information on products and product components, and advice on how to maintain the shine once the treatment is completed.

As you can see, there may be many reasons for your car having a dull, lifeless paint job, but now there are no more excuses!

Misleading statements

Dear Editor:

Supervisor Karin Strasser Kauffman speaks of what she knows not!

The Herald on Sept. 30 stated: Supervisor Kauffman reported at a Hatton Canyon Freeway meeting in Carmel's Sunset Center that "existing Highway 1 can't be widened enough to accommodate all the traffic that is accumulating. Besides, the state doesn't have the right-of-way on that alignment and homes would have to be removed."

The statement is misleading. The state owns a 100-plus-foot wide strip along Highway 1. Check with your local title company. You can widen Highway 1 to four lanes for about $5 million. Hatton Canyon Freeway will cost $30 million—plus.

I attended a church dinner in Carmel, where Strasser Kauffman was the guest speaker. She was born in Germany and spoke of the atrocities the American soldiers committed when they invaded Germany.

There may have been few such isolated cases as in any war. She and her sister (as she told the church audience), had to hide in a haystack. Many high ranking Army Officers told me that was a bunch of hogwash.

Mrs. Strasser Kauffman also stated, she came to the USA, received a scholarship and a subsidized college degree.

My personal opinion and I may be biased, but why the people of Monterey County continue to elect this newcomer to be one of the basic spokesperson for the board of supervisors, is beyond my comprehension.

Economic vision

Dear Editor:

I am the author of The Leadership Passion, The Knowable Future, and the award-winning The Healing of a Nation. For 40 years I have watched, studied, and written about American presidential debates.

In watching the first Bush-Dukakis debate one thing above all was clear to me. Because of the way more public debt was run up during the single presidency of Ronald Reagan than during all previous presidents combined, and because of the economic as well as social immorality of the Reagan years, we face an economic debacle as severe, and in some ways worse than, the Great Depression of the 1930s.

With either Dukakis or Bush as president we will be tested as seldom before in American history.

But with Dukakis, when it hits we will look to the presidency—and vice presidency—and see two highly intelligent, decent, tough men with a proven track record in economic vision and leadership, who could pull us out of it.

With Bush, we will look to the presidency—and vice presidency—then see with horror our mistake and panic. And that panic will cycle panic and bring on the nightmare that both Republicans and Democrats now so greatly fear.

Abrasive remarks

Dear Editor:

I was amazed to read the abrasive remarks made against Caltrans in the Oct. 6 issue of the Pine Cone. Especially distasteful was the accusation that if the Hatton Canyon Project is lost because of delay the fault would be that of Caltrans. That is not correct.

For the past 25 years the urban growth has spread dramatically, including The Barnyard and The Crossroads. People have enjoyed the relative ease of travel while plans for the Hatton Canyon Project went to low priority. Once again the flood of traffic has brought relative saturation, and once again plans for the project are active along with earmarked funds.

Now the urban alarm bells are being sounded. If there is a delay which jeopardizes the construction of the project then the blame must go to the community: it goes to the "pro project" people because of becoming complacent, and to the "con project" people because of their growing smokescreen.

Ernest F. Easterbrook

Parking relief

Dear Editor:

I recently spent a weekend near Solvang, where the Danes were celebrating their September "Danish Days," and I couldn't help noticing what a difference the absence of parking time limits makes in the ambiance of that resort community.

Solvang is similar to Carmel as a theme resort emphasizing early European architecture, though Solvang's theme is a strict replication of early Denmark. But even more than Carmel, Solvang has retained the tranquil atmosphere of a pre-industrial town, largely because of absence of urban pressures. One of those pressures is time-limit parking.

We experience a similar tranquility in the smaller, village shopping areas in Carmel Valley where it isn't necessary to continually check the time as we go about our shopping, so why not eliminate time-limit parking in the more crowded city of Carmel which needs all the relief from urban pressures it can get? What's the sense in moving one tourist out of his parking spot so that another tourist can move into it? There's no way to determine which tourist is likely to spend the most money in Carmel. And parking time limits are an infernal nuisance for residents who are more likely to have prolonged business in the city center. The same could be said of the other cities on the Monterey Peninsula.

But above all, there's the quality of life to consider. How would it look if charming Solvang had a bunch of parking police circulating throughout the town chalking car tires and writing out tickets? The parking signs alone would be unthinkable in such a picturesque town. Why should Carmel be any less picturesque?

Now Carmel has reached the point where tourists, as well as residents, might even be treated to the police state spectacle of tire manacles (euphemistically called "boots"), being placed on someone's car for their failure to pay parking tickets. If you saw that type of thing in Solvang, it would be almost enough to make you cough up your sausages and beer, wouldn't it?

Scare tactics

Dear Editor:

Since everyone wants to do something about AIDS, what's wrong with Proposition 102, the "Dannemeyer AIDS Initiative," and Proposition 96? Simply put, they're bad medicine. They would not work to stop AIDS, and they would violate our civil rights, whether we have AIDS or not. That's why every organization of doctors, nurses and health professionals oppose 102 and 96.

The law already requires reporting of AIDS cases. Proposition 102 would do away with confidential testing and require that people testing positive for the HIV virus, or people who even look like they have the virus, would be reported even though they don't have AIDS.

No one would voluntarily take a test like that. That's why 102 permits employers and insurance companies to test us all for AIDS, and to report the results. Employees could be fired even though they don't have AIDS, and even though doctors agree that AIDS cannot be transmitted in the ordinary workplace. Insurance coverage would be denied or cancelled, causing the burden for medical care of the uninsured to fall on the taxpayers. Proposition 102 would cost us millions of dollars.

What works to reduce AIDS infections is education, confidential testing and funding medical research. Proposition 102 does away with these known results and replaces them with ineffective scare tactics. Everyone is concerned with the spread of AIDS. Let's do something that works: Vote NO on Propositions 102 and 96.

Arts advocates to discuss state of arts in Carmel

A DISCUSSION on art and culture in Carmel is more than an academic exercise for this town.

Carmel-by-the-Sea has a reputation as an oasis for artists, writers, musicians and theatrical people, and that reputation is the basis for much of the respect it commands throughout the state and nation.

But that image may be changing and Carmel citizens face a challenge today that those who waxed poetic about the village in the 1930s and 1920s probably never thought would even be a question.

Recent events have given the city cultural commission pause and a reason to ask "What is the state of the arts in Carmel today?"

What type of community should this be and what place do culture and art have in Carmel-by-the-Sea?

To help answer those questions, the cultural commission has planned a workshop with many of the members of the artistic community at a special special seminar and study session at 10 a.m., Saturday, Oct. 22 in Carpenter Hall in Sunset Center.

The seminar/workshop is open to the public, which is invited and encouraged to come and give its input.

Cultural commission chairman Roger Fremier explained that the budget cuts in cultural grants, the abandonment of financial support for the Festival of Firsts, the rejection of the proposed Stanton Theater and the loss of the Studio Theater has generated concern among those interested in the cultural life of the city.

"The activities here are in a no-growth situation," Fremier said. "We want to do a needs assessment and we thought that we would do it through a workshop rather than conduct a survey."

Residents of Carmel, Fremier said, continue to remain the primary audience for cultural events on the peninsula, citing the usually sold-out attendance for symphony concerts as one example.

"I think still, as a city, we have a higher interest in cultural activities than many, many other communities," he added.

Carmel resident and local arts critic Patrick Franklin and the scheduled keynote speaker for the workshop, said he also believes the public at large "maintains a great interest."

That may not be enough, he added.

"People seem to forget that just maintaining the status quo takes effort," Franklin warned.

Franklin said he would like to see more "interaction among the cultural groups" on the peninsula and especially in Carmel, as well as better facilities in Carmel.

Other speakers scheduled for the workshop include long-time Carmel resident Marjory Lloyd who will talk about art in early years of Carmel; Sue Dewar, art advocate; Keith Lindberg, president of the Carmel Art Association; Robert Campbell, writer and winner of the Edgar Mystery Writing award; and John Light, executive director of the Monterey County Theater Alliance.

Open house on Hatton freeway set for Oct. 22

CALTRANS HAS announced that a second open house on the Hatton Canyon Freeway has been set for this Saturday.

The open house will be held from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22 at the Carmel Valley Community Center, located on Ford Road in Carmel Valley Village.

Displays of the proposed $26 million freeway project, including scale models, before-and-after photos, as well as other exhibits, will be available during the open house.

Project managers as well as members of the Hatton Canyon Advisory Committee will be in attendance to discuss and answer any questions about the project.

"We realize that the Hatton Canyon project is of concern to many Carmel Valley residents," said Tom Pollock, Caltrans district director. "It is our hope that this open house will increase understanding of the project and the positive effect it will have on the Monterey Peninsula."

After the open house, the 12-foot scale model of the project will be on display at Carmel City Hall. Additional displays will be place at the Carmel Post Office downtown.

CHURCH OF THE WAYFARER CONTROVERSY SETTLED

In reverting to its original dedication, (1904) as a Methodist Episcopal Church, the Carmel Church of the Wayfarer has happily terminated a period of controversy and a divided membership.

At a meeting held last Tuesday evening, the motion was carried 228-18 that the main church property and buildings at Lincoln and 7th "continue as a Methodist Episcopal Church."

Founded 59 years ago on land deeded "in trust for the use and benefit of the ministry and membership of the methodist Church," the Church of the Wayfarer became identified through the years as "non-denominational" through its admirable "open door" policy to Protestants, local and visiting, who found no church of their specific denomination in the area.

Through the years the non-Methodist group has greatly increased, and the Methodist-Episcopal identification of its ministry was dimmed.

RIDGELINE ZONING KILLED

Rezoning of the Cachagua Valley has been delayed indefinitely after the Monterey County Board of Supervisors shot down a new zoning category for the area last week.

On a 3-2 vote, the supervisors rejected a compromise version of proposed "SC-1" zone. The new zone was recommended by the planning department staff and the county planning commission.

The compromise proposed by Supervisors Sam Farr and Michael Moore would have controlled construction on ridgelines, requiring a use permit to build in visually sensitive areas.

CV VILLAGE LIGHTING HITS PUBLIC OPPOSITION

Efforts to light Carmel Valley Village have become a bureaucratic nightmare for Peter Coakley.

Coakley is a member of the Carmel Valley Village Improvement Committee which has attempted to erect more street lights in the village paid for by an assessment district. Coakley told the Carmel Pine Cone/Carmel Valley Outlook last week those efforts have been put on the "back burner because of public opposition to it."

Coakley had planned to have the assessment district in place before PG&E starts its undergrounding project in the village.

But residents in the village made it abundantly clear earlier this year that they would not support an assessment district to provide a service they said would only benefit village businessmen.

TAKE MY WORD FOR IT

By D. Patrick Gallagher

Conditional subjunctive

IT'S SURPRISING to find so much interest in such an obscure form of speech as the subjunctive mood. Unfortunately, it is a construction whose surviving forms frequently are used in error.

The rule for those remaining forms is, when expressing a wish, or a condition contrary to fact, use the verb form were and not was. Essentially that means that were follows the use of the words wish, if and the construction as though. If we remember that, we will have corrected about 90 percent of all the errors that occur in the subjunctive today. Some examples:

- If I were going...
- If it were true...
- Act as though it were enjoyable...
- I wish I were rich...

Continued use of the indicative form, "If I was going..." etc., is ungrammatical. Most other forms of the subjunctive have fallen into disuse, except for occasional period novels where its application lends authenticity to the dialogue.

One reader raised an interesting question with regard to my recommendation that were always follows if and wish and that a dependent clause in the same sentence always be in the subjunctive mood as well. Since the subjunctive is used for situations contrary to fact, this reader suggests an exception to my rule. As an example:

- If I were the cause of the accident ~~(I was not the cause)~~, I would make reparation.
- If I was the cause of the accident (I was the cause), I will make reparation.

The argument is based on the point that in the second example the situation is not contrary to fact. It's an interesting point, but let's look at it closely. In either case, the if clause requires the use of the subjunctive mood because, regardless of the probability of the speaker's blame, the fact remains unknown and the construction places it in doubt. The intent to incur greater blame does not relieve one of the grammatical obligation to maintain the integrity of the two clauses. A correct construction in the second case, therefore, would be:

- If I am the cause of the accident, I will make reparations.

The construction If I were the cause... implies significant doubt and the probability that I expect not be held to account, whereas If I am the cause... implies the speaker's acknowledgement of a greater probability of blame and, most of all, assures a willingness to accept responsibility. Nevertheless, it is being expressed as if the fact were still in doubt. Therefore, is this indicative form still the subjunctive mood or is it an exception?

All this points up a much misunderstood phrase, exception to the rule, which we interpret to mean, every rule has an exception. Its Latin origin, exceptio probat regulum, translates as, "the exception proves the rule," meaning that a perceived exception offers an opportunity to validate the rule by establishing that it is no exception at all. If you think that was fun, and most of you probably don't, try this one. What to do with the future subjunctive? President Reagan is quoted in Time as saying:

"Should we be successful in the upcoming INF negotiations, we would move, at the summit in Moscow, to eliminate intermediate range missiles."

Because the success is speculative and according to the contrary-to-fact rule, that sentence is correctly in the subjunctive mood. It is a situation, as yet, contrary to fact. So far, so good. Are we having fun yet?

However, one might ask, "How can you have a situation contrary to fact in the future?" If we are dealing with a hypothetical future condition, then no fact is yet established and it defies logic to have a future subjunctive mood.

Most people resolve the situation by simply ignoring the subjunctive altogether, but Fowler refers to the use of verbs in the future subjunctive as an area of utopia or non-time and therefore, referring to non-fact. An example:

- If that were to happen, we would be very angry.

Here, were and would are recognizable subjunctive forms, and applicable not to past facts, but to future non-facts. And you thought English was dull!

There is one incorrect subjunctive use which occurs daily. "Viki, would you hand me the paper, please?' The answer ought to be "Would I hand you the paper if what happens?" The use of would in this way is conditional and subjunctive.

It is interesting to note that Fowler declares the subjunctive dead and then proceeds to allot four pages and eight columns, in very small print, to its explanation.

Beyond the use of the forms already recommended, Fowler says, avoid the other subjunctive forms. "The conclusion is that writers...run the risks, first, of making their matter needlessly formal, second, of being tempted into blunders themselves, third, of injuring the language by encouraging others more ignorant than themselves to blunder habitually, and lastly, of having the proper dignity of style at which they aim mistaken by captious readers for pretentiousness."

Chantilly Lace

TABLES FOR dining were set outside The Lodge's Conference Room on a crystal clear night with a slither of a moon above. All for The Chantilly Lace Ball given to support Carmel's Briarcliff Academy.

Although inside silver streamers dangled down from black and gold balloons and The Cruise Tones featured '50s-style music, there were no '50s frocks-and-bobby-sox. Just the latest strapless ruffled gowns for a sophisticated evening of silent auction decisions, casino games with players having fun despite the attorney general's ruling that no prizes can be awarded, lavish food and dancing, dancing, dancing.

Briarcliff Academy principal Chuck Johnston greeted guests at the door in front of a "Fairy Tale Quilt." The quilt is a sparking original designed by Marguerite Gaffney-Way and sewn by Lorise Baker. $$ from raffle ticket sales will help fund the art department and will be given to the lucky winner in December.

Glitter and bidding sheets were placed on silent auction tables set up for: Fashion & Beauty, Sports & Health, Home Furnishings, Food & Wine, Art, Restaurants, and Vacation & Travel.

Karin Sobeck and Donna Gates, president of Briarcliff Parents Club, were co-chairpersons of this successful fund-raiser. They were grateful for the generous support given by local businesses.

The party started at 7 and ended at the witching hour but, as the song goes, They Could Have Danced All Night.

STEPHANIE MYSZAK became the bride of Victor Constantine Symonette Oct. 15 at Carmel Mission with the Rev. Joseph P. Conran officiating. Donnna Myszak, the bride's sister, was maid of honor and the groom's father, Randolph Symonette, was best man. Linda Purdy was soloist with Ed Soberanes at the organ and Jessica Gintert of Santa Cruz as flower girl.

The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Eileen Myszak of Scotts Valley and Mr. John Myszak of Seaside. She graduated from Cabrillo College with honors and earned her bachelor and master of music degrees at Manhattan School of Music, New York City. She has sung solo performances with Amato Opera, Pennsylvania Symphony, Brooklyn Opera and Monterey Bay Symphony.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Randolph Symonette of New York City. He has a master's degree in mass communications from Florida State University and is a conductor, cellist and vocal coach in New York. He is artistic director for The Princeton Festival and conductor for several New York opera companies. His father is a former operatic singer who performed throughout Germany and with the New York Metropolitan Opera. His mother is vice-president of the Kurt Weill Foundation.

Following the ceremony a buffet-luncheon reception for 80 guests was held in the Seaside home of John and Marti Myszak. "Carlos and Ramon" and Ron Blair provided reception music. And the bride sang That's Him (from One Touch of Venus), to her husband. Her mother-in-law accompanied her on the piano.

Special guests included the bride's grandmother Luna Elliot of Scotts Valley and the groom's godmother Frances Leventritt of New York.

Following a honeymoon in California the couple will reside in New York City and continue their musical careers. In December they will visit Bulgaria to do a German recording of Kurt Weill's Three Penny Opera with Stephanie singing the soprano lead and Victor conducting.

NO ONE thing could be more symbolic of Altrusa International than "helping hands." Altrusa (deriving from altruism), is devoted to the interests of others. The "helping hand" theme was carried out in the decorations for the Annual Altrusa Tea and Silent Auction by Nadine Annand. For this fall festal occasion she used colorful, decorated pumpkins with two joined hands to decorate the tea table and the windows of Estrada Adobe in downtown Monterey.

With 19,000 members in 12 countries, the talents of professional women and women executives help to shape a better life for all. Each club accepts no more than three women from a specific business or profession thus attaining a diversity of talents.

Altrusa has been a pioneer in sponsoring career conferences and other services for youth, job forums for the mature worker, assistance for the mentally and physically handicapped, safety programs, projects to improve mutual understanding among nations and services to the aged and aging.

Noreen Eaton of Pacific Grove, Altrusa president, said, "Money raised at this yearly event will be directed to the Margaret Bennett Vocational Service Fund, Handicapped Unlimited, Gateway Center, and the Josephine Kearns Swim Program."

CEREMONIES, RECEPTIONS, parties and other special events were held for 1,523 Naval personnel visiting here Oct. 13-16 for Monterey Fleet Week 1988 to celebrate the US Navy's 213th Birthday.

A party and dance for unmarried men was arranged at the Monterey Sheraton Ballroom Friday night just when the Monterey Bay waters became so choppy that many of the disappointed men could not be brought ashore. However, Thursday evening the officers of the USS Tarawa and escort ships USS Alamo, USS Wadsworth and USCGC Resolute were honored with a reception at the Monterey Bay Aquarium. It was sponsored by The Monterey History and Art Association, YMCA, City of Monterey, the Sheraton and the MP Chamber of Commerce.

Vice Admiral Diego Edyl Hernandez, commander of the 3rd Fleet, Rear Adm. Robert C. Austin (NPS), Monterey Mayor Dan Albert, Philip Nash, Dr. Charles A. Sweet, Jr., Sherrie McCullough (chamber president), and the guy everybody looks up to Col. Robert Foley, chief of staff, Fort Ord (and the tallest man there), and others, greeted hundreds of guests by the aquarium's Kelp Forest.

A brief ceremony of welcome was held near the main entrance of the aquarium with Vice Adm. Hernandez ending it by saying, "Now for the important part — cutting the cake." The sword was brought out and with the assistance of other fleet officers, the Naval birthday cake went down in history.

Col. (Ret.) Henry J. Wereszynski, chairman of Fleet Week, was disappointed that two guests were unable to attend — Vice President George Bush and Bob Hope. It was a grand party anyway, with singing by the Cypressaires and music by KXDC Jazz Workshop Orchestra and a precise drill presentation by the US Marines. Working with Mr. Wereszynski were Leta Stever, Todd Bliss, Dr. Charles A. Sweet, Jr., John Saunders, Cmdr. Allan Sherwood, NPS, and Bob Herschede.

It felt as though Monterey had returned to the glory of the days when it was the capital of California.

GUESTS OF the Carmel Valley Ranch Resort will be able to view "Paintings in the Chinese Tradition" by Alison Stilwell Cameron in the Resort Lodge Gallery through December.

A champagne reception was given in her honor to open the exhibition with more than 50 guests attending.

Mrs. Cameron, artist, author-illustrator, teacher and lecturer, was born in Beijing, China and studied painting there. She is a member of American Women for International Understanding, Society of Women Geographers and the Carmel Art Association. She is on the boards of National Committee on US-China Relations, MIIS, and Planned Parenthood of Monterey County.

She is listed in Who's Who of American Women and Who's Who in the West and was awarded Distinguished Woman of 1984 by Northwood Institute. She resides in Carmel-by-the-Sea.

OPEN FORUM ON INSURANCE INITIATIVES SET FOR OCT. 26

The Pacific Grove Jaycees want to help you settle the insurance initiative question. The Jaycees will sponsor a forum on the various initiatives that will be on the ballot this November.

Jim Pederson, regional underwriter for Allstate Insurance, will talk on behalf of Proposition 104 (The No-Fault Initiative), and a representative of the California Trial Lawyers Association will speak on behalf of Proposition 100 (The Insurance Consumer Action Network).

The forum will begin at 7 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 26, at the Pacific Grove Civic Center, loeated at 515 Junipero, Pacific Grove. The speakers will present their viewpoints and then an open discussion will follow. The public is encouraged to attend.

For further information please call one of the co-organizers, either Pat Finch at 372-0789 or Frank Klahn at 373-4856.

FRIENDS OF THE PACIFIC GROVE LIBRARY BOOK SALE

The annual Mini Book Sale, one of two sales held yearly by the Friends of the Pacific Grove Library, will take place Saturday, Oct. 22, from 9:30 a.m. to 2 p.m. in the front of the library.

Beverly Williams is chairman for the fund-raising for the dedicated group which serves as a support medium for both the adult and junior libraries. Bargains in all books will be offered featuring a variety of categories.

HALLOWEEN PARADE SCHEDULED OCT. 29

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Annual Halloween Parade is scheduled for Saturday, Oct. 29 beginning at 11 a.m. The children's costume parade features local youth, school clubs and city officials and guests.

Dress in costume and bring a friend to join in on the fun. For those wishing to participate in the parade the staging area is located at Sunset Center on San Carlos Street. The parade route will begin at Sunset and proceed west on Ocean Avenue to the beach. Children under 7 years of age should be accompanied by an adult and must check in at Sunset by 10:30 a.m.

For more information please call the Carmel-by-the-Sea Department of Recreation at 626-1255.

PEER COUNSELOR TRAINING FOR MEN'S ALTERNATIVES TO VIOLENCE

Monterey County Men's Alternatives to Violence, MATV, is a local group of men working together to provide information and support for other men who want to address the issue of violence in their lives. Working as non-professional peer counselors, they facilitate weekly drop-in

Perky presenter

MR. AND Mrs. Darryl Bolstad of Glendora were the top bidders ($5,400) during the silent auction at Gallery Americana Saturday, with proceeds from the sale of artist Maurice Harvey's painting "Ten Steps to Nine Lives" going to the Monterey County SPCA. Harvey and Gallery Americana have totalled $13,000 in donations to the SPCA, of which Harvey and his wife Julia are active members. Doris Day was to have presented the check to Rich Ward of the SPCA, but couldn't make it due to illness. In her stead she sent the Harvey's dog Perky to relay the check from gallery director John Dandois to Ward. Above, Julia, with Perky, and Maurice Harvey, Rich Ward and John Dandois (left to right), after the check presentation.

Super sale

groups in Monterey and Salinas. Because of the large number of men showing up for these drop-in meetings, more facilitators are needed.

Men's Alternatives to Violence would like you to attend its forthcoming peer counselor training if:

- You are interested in understanding how men have learned to use violence to solve problems

- You would consider volunteering time and energy helping other men learn alternatives to abusive behavior, and

- You are interested in joining a community-based effort in which men support each other for change.

The training begins Tuesday, Oct. 25 and ends Nov. 22. Additional information is available from Bruce Doneux at 646-5499.

AREA HIGH SCHOOLS

High school students are invited to meet with a representative of Whitman College who will visit Carmel on Tuesday, Oct. 25.

Elizabeth Hoover, assistant director of admissions, will discuss Whitman, and students will have the opportunity to ask questions and learn about academic and extracurricular programs.

Whitman, a private, independent college of liberal arts and sciences, is located in Southeastern Washington state.

Hoover will visit Carmel High School at 8:30 a.m.

Students who wish to meet with Hoover should make advance arrangements with a guidance counselor.

UN ASSOCIATION DINNER OCT. 24

There will be a United Nations Day dinner at the La Grande Room of the Monterey Beach Hotel (Highway 1 and Canyon Del Rey), on Monday, Oct. 24. The program will start promptly at 7 p.m. The featured speaker will be Rep. Leon Panetta, with the subject: "United Nations; Coming of Age."

United Nations Day was established to foster our awareness of the interdependence of the world's many nations and of the pressing need to seek global solutions to the unprecedented and complex array of problems that face mankind at this time—human rights, population growth, environmental quality, food distribution, energy production, nuclear proliferation, and maintenance of peace.

The event is sponsored by the United Nations Association, with co-sponsors of the local chapters of the Baha'i Faith, Beyond War, League of Women Voters, New Forum, and Sane Freeze.

Tickets are $15.

community are invited to a day of old-fashioned carnival fun, the 5th annual Tularcitos Fall Carnival, Saturday, Oct. 22, from 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. at Tularcitos School on Ford Road, in Carmel Valley.

There will be games, such as the ever-popular goldfish toss, the wheel-of-fortune, and the cake walk. Try your hand at a variety of crafts at any of several craft booths. A haunted house and face painting will provide some Halloween fun. For a special treat, the Homefire Band will entertain everyone with live bluegrass music.

Food will be abundant: Hamburgers, hot dogs, pasta salad, chili, nachos, pop corn and ice cream will be sold.

T-shirts and sweatshirts will be for sale at the carnival and again this year will be the used book booth for your literary pleasure.

To challenge your imagination, we are having another Scarecrow Contest. Everyone is welcome to enter. There is a $5 entry fee. Guidelines for the contest are limited only to your imagination. Cash will be awarded to first prize ($25), second prize ($15), and "Best of Show," ($25). For entry forms or more information about the contest, call Kathy Hershey at 659-3684.

Booths for selling arts and crafts will also be available. If you wish to sell your wares, contact Diane Peccianti at 625-4313 between 5 and 6 p.m.

Admission is free. Tickets for game booths and food purchases will be 5 for $1 advance sale, or 5 for $1.25 the day of the carnival.

Proceeds from the carnival will go toward classroom materials, special school assemblies, field trips, etc.

YORK SCHOOL SETS FALL FAIR OCT. 22

The York School's annual Fall Fair will be held at the school on Saturday, Oct. 22, between 11 a.m. and 3 p.m. This is an event for the whole family, and there will be plenty to see and do for all. Children will especially enjoy the games and activities sponsored by the classes and clubs at York. As for the adults, those who enjoy shopping and bargains will not want to miss the Country Store, located in the school library. The Country Store features an assortment of homemade and handmade edibles and crafts plus fresh vegetables, fruits, flowers, and plants. In one corner of the store, a number of items will be offered via silent auction. In another, there will be a counter of used books and toys.

Outside, just off the commons, a delicious homemade lunch will be served by the York Parents Club: freshly barbecued chicken, homemade beans, and salad will cost $3.50 per person. York students will also be selling hot dogs, soft drinks, ice cream, and snow cones.

This event is open to the entire community. The York School is located just off Highway 68 at York Road. To get there, turn off at the flashing yellow light onto York Road, climb the hill and turn into the first driveway on your right. Continue straight ahead to find plenty of free parking. There is no admission fee to get into the Fall Fair.

Back to school

BACK TO School Night at Carmel High School was held Oct. 6, giving parents an opportunity to meet with teachers and visit classrooms. Parents enjoyed cookies and punch while listening to the school band and meeting with representatives of student and parent clubs. Principal Marie Ishida introduced the faculty and staff and turned the meeting over to leaders of four parent groups: Career Center (Nancy Rittermal), which will sponsor the fourth annual College Night from 7 to 9 p.m. Nov. 3; Music Boosters (Jon Zook), which meets at 3 p.m. the second Tuesday of each month; Carmel High Boosters Club (Pam Spagna, president), which will host a '50s dance and rummage sale to raise money; and Padre Parents (Cherie Evans, president), which meets at 1 p.m. the second Thursday of each month. Above Evans (left) and Lou Langley man the Padre Parents booth at Back to School Night. (Diane Miracle photo.)

New president

DR. DAVID Hopkins of Pebble beach has been named the new president of Monterey Peninsula College by the school's board of trustees. Hopkins had been serving as the interim superintendent/president for the last 13 months. Hopkins was chosen because of his familiarity with the college and its growth and financial problems. Hopkins joined the MPC faculty 25 years ago and has served as chairman of the Business Division, director of Vocational Education, associate dean of instruction and administrative dean. He is a graduate of University of Missouri, received his master's degree from the University of Arizona and his doctorate from University of Northern Colorado. He and his wife Alice live in Pebble Beach and have two sons, David and Daniel.

WORKSHOP FOR BOARDS AND STAFF OF NON-PROFITS ANNOUNCED

A workshop for non-profit organizations, "Supervising People Effectively," will be held at the Marina City Council Chambers on Friday, Oct. 21 from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. The workshop will focus on managing authority and responsibility, and making choices which ensure employee and organizational success.

As a service to the community, this low-cost workshop is sponsored by the Community Foundation for Monterey County, and is designed to train the staff, board and volunteers of non-profit organizations. For registration details and further information regarding the workshop, contact the offices of the Community Foundation for Monterey County, 420 Pacific St. in Monterey, and 119 East Alisal in Salinas.

DEMOCRATIC WOMEN'S CLUB TO SPONSOR McCARTHY FUND-RAISER

The Democratic Women's Club of Monterey County will host a reception for Mrs. Jackie McCarthy, wife of the Democratic senatorial candidate, Leo McCarthy, Thursday, Oct. 20 from 5 to 7 p.m.

Q. SINCE my neighbor owns his home and a car, I was surprised to learn he was getting SSI payments. How can that be when he also has a son who has an excellent job with a large corporation?

CD, Pacific Grove

A. ELIGIBILITY for SSI is limited to people with little or no income or resources; however, they don't have to be penniless. Social Security doesn't count some resources when deciding if a person is eligible for SSI. The applicant's home and adjacent land are not counted. And, depending on their value, a car, personal and household goods, insurance policies, and burial funds may not count. The son's income and resources are not counted unless they are used to support his father. Any support the father receives must be reported to Social Security.

•

Q. RECENTLY I discovered my serum blood cholesterol is 246 mg/Dl, and my doctor has advised me to follow a low-fat, low-cholesterol diet. My husband and I are retired and a favorite pastime is eating out. I am tired of salad bars with no dressing. Have you any suggestions?

BE, Carmel

A. FIRST I want to apologize to Elsa Brisson, the registered dietitian at the Area Agency on Aging for neglecting to credit her for the information used in answering a previous question on salt. Here Elsa recommends that you contact the American Heart Association. They have recently updated a brochure called "Dining out on the Central Coast." The brochure contains guides and tips for heart-healthy eating out. It also includes a list of local restaurants that responded to a recent survey and the survey questions. The questions include the availability of margarine and skim milk, if reasonable substitutions could be made, and many other often made requests of the diet conscious. In Salinas the brochure is available for 50 cents a copy at the Central Mission Trails Chapter, 10 San Miguel Ave, Salinas, CA 93901 (Tel: 757-6221 or 372-0485.)

•

Q. MY mother lives in Greenfield and it would take a ton of dynamite to get her to leave her home and independence to come and live with me. She has tried to get someone to come in twice a week to help her with her household chores but has been unhappy with the results. Is there anyone who has seriously addressed this problem of the elderly?

ES, Salinas

A. THE Alliance on Aging is building a registry of people over the age of 50 who are available for the type of work which would satisfy your mother's needs as well as baby sitting and other related chores. And it is also a wonderful opportunity for those over age 50, who need to supplement their income, to register for full or part time employment. For more information contact Althea Palmer of the Alliance on Aging in Salinas (at 758-0911) or Trudy Woods in Monterey (at 646-4636).

(Need information on senior affairs? Write Senior Line, Area Agency on Aging, 1184 Monroe Street, Suite 10, Salinas, Ca. 93906 or call 372-7662. Senior Line needs your name, address and phone number but these will be withheld on request. Printed letters may be edited to meet space requirements.)

TICKETS FOR A TASTY AFFAIR BENEFIT MUST BE PURCHASED IN ADVANCE

Tickets for the third annual event called A Tasty Affair are now on sale. A Tasty Affair is an evening of wine, food and music that will take place Nov. 5 at The Monterey Plaza, The Grand Hotel on the bay at Cannery Row. This event is a benefit for the public radio station KAZU which broadcasts at 90.3 FM from Pacific Grove. Tickets are $25 per person and must be purchased in advance. Tickets are available from Center Stage Ticketing in Monterey, Bookworks in Pacific Grove, and at Cymbaline Records at their Capitola and Santa Cruz locations.

Among the highlights: tortellini in bolognese sauce from Delfino Restaurant, award-winning pates from Michael's Catering in Salinas, 1986 Reserve Chardonnay from William Hill Winery and award-winning Cabernet Sauvignon from Ahlgren Winery. Musicians David Michael on harp, Robert McNamara on classical guitar, and Kenny Stahl on flute will be on hand to complement the tasting. Dancing to the Roger Eddy Band will follow the tasting which starts at 7. For further information, call 375-7275.

HIV/AIDS BIKE-A-THON RAISES $4,500

The first HIV/AIDS Bike-a-Thon, sponsored by the Monterey County AIDS Project, Fort Ord Red Cross and Carmel Red Cross, raised more than $4,500 to sponsor AIDS education in the county. Forty-five riders of all ages rode Sept. 25 from 10 to 60 miles, with Stephanie Ruskell raising $1,200 in pledges.

RED CROSS RECEIVES $1,800 DONATION

Frances Benton of Pebble Beach and Richard Tyler of Sunset Center recently donated almost $1,800 to the Carmel-By-The-Sea Chapter of the American Red Cross towards the purchase of a slide projector, a 20-inch TV monitor and a video camera recorder for use in Health Services towards education in CPR, First Aid and HIV (AIDS).

BMW 705iL

By Jim Johnson

Precision Beyond Excellent

CREATIVE DEPTH, engineering strength, design excellence, poise and refined ultra-luxury are plays on euphemism by grasping automotive journalists in search for words to articulate their impressions of the 12-cylinder BMW 750iL...a vehicle from another world.

Exhilarating? The 750 goes beyond redefining balanced standards of precision excellence. Whistles and bells do not constitute balance. Safety, exterior design, interior features, power train, suspension and technology do. By preempting all others, the 750iL goes beyond.

A "safety cage" is adequate protection for the 750's 27-gallon fuel cell. Passengers are insulated with impact boxes, deformation zones and collision sills. Measures are taken to assure avoidance; Round ellipsoid head lamps increase illumination and reduce kick-back glare from fog. An advanced heated wiper system automatically adjusts pressure and sweep to vehicle speed and an acoustical signal warns of icing pavement. A four-sensor Anti-Locking Braking System (ABS), three-air-bag Supplemental Restraint System (SRS) and impact bumpers are included. Should impact occur, the on-board computer activates the warning signals, turns on the interior lights and unlocks your door.

Beyond advanced interior ancilliaries are the memory-positioned seat and mirrors for the driver and electrically adjustable passenger seats and rear headrests. Leather "multi-zone" padded seats eliminate the need fo manual lumbar adjustment. A fixed micro-receiver complements the factory-fitted cellular telephone.

On board are a co-pilot and an engineer; EPC (Electronic Power Control) and DME III (Digital Motor Electronics, third generation). The EPC's primary responsibility is precision adjustment of engine power to the driver's specific requirement. DME is a computer that has learned how to learn. By compiling information on driving patterns over a course of time, DME can anticipate a malfunction and enable service technicians to correct its cause.

Without resorting to a super-aerodynamic design, BMW has gone beyond streamline drag coefficient to a new dimension in wind management, while at the same time retaining its own distinctive look of traditional forwardness.

The 5.0-liter, 12-cylinder engine delivers power and torque seemingly with endless reserve, limited only by EPC. And, yes the engine is virtually maintenance-free. A strong claim until you reflect for a moment. How much adjustment did Discovery's digital electronic system need during its recent voyage? Can a computer who has learned to learn compensate for mechanical component wear? Yes.

To allow the self-learning control system to adjust running conditions with shifting points, the power and trasmission were developed as one complete unit. Three shifting programs are available: manual, performance and automatic...pilot?

Underscoring the 750's mighty power are four 225/60 VR 15-inch high speed radials. The 15x7-inch concave alloy wheels provide sufficent space for extra large brake discs, pistons and asbestos-free pads. Further features are double-pivot McPherson front struts and twin-tube self-leveling rear gas shock absorbers.

For the select few who have attained an appreciation for a milestone in design, the BMW 750iL represents an overpowering masterpiece of balance beyond mechanical and electronic precision.

OBITUARIES

Mary K. Kenney

Graveside services took place Oct. 4 at El Carmelo Cemetery in Pacific Grove, for Mary Katherine Kenney, a retired nurse, who died Sept. 29 at El Camino Hospital in Mountain View. She was 81.

Mrs. Kenney, who was also known as Kay, was born June 12, 1907 in San Luis Obispo. She lived in the Monterey Peninsula area, making her home in Carmel and Pacific Grove, for more than 36 years. During that time, she worked as a registered nurse at the Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. She was the wife of the late Harry Fitzgerald Kenney.

She is survived by one brother, F.J. McHenry of Palo Alto; one sister, Patricia Baron of Santa Clara and numerous nieces and nephews.

The Lima Family Mortuary of Santa Clara was in charge of arrangements.

Stanley A. Prior

Funeral services took place Sept. 23 at the Carmel Presbyterian Church, for Stanley A. Prior of Pebble Beach, who owned and operated a women's specialty shop in Pacific Grove for 33 years, who died Sept. 20 at the Hospice of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 70.

Born Nov. 18, 1917 in Sacramento, he lived in Pebble Beach since 1950. He was the owner of Grove Sportswear until he retired in 1979.

He attended the University of California at Berkeley and then the School of Design in Paris. He was a member of the Pacific Grove Rotary Club and the Carmel Presbyterian Church.

Survivors include his wife, Betty; his sister, Betty Jane Waddy of Carson; and several nieces and nephews.

Following funeral services, burial took place in El Carmelo Cemetery.

Ciao Kramer

A memorial Rosary was recited Sept. 23 at Our Lady of M. Carmel Church in Carmel Valley Village, followed by a burial Mass at the church, for Ciao Kramer, also known as Joan B., who died Sept. 20 at Pacific Presbyterian Medical Center in San Francisco. She was 56.

Born Sept. 7, 1932 in Minneapolis, she worked as an executive secretary at the McDonald Douglas plant in Santa Monica, where she met her husband, Will. A resident of Carmel Valley for 20 years, she also worked for the Pine Cone during 1971-72 in the real estate ads department.

Survivors, in addition to her husband, include a daughter, Debbie Howard of Fairfax County, Va.; five sons, William M. Kramer of Fairfax Station, Va., Theodore T. Kramer of Grand Junction, Col., Paul Howard of Laramie, Wyo., Kevin Howard of San Jose and Terry Howard of Campbell; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Merrit Butler of Bray County Wicklow, Republic of Ireland; and five grandchildren.

Graveside services took place Sept. 24 in San Carlos Catholic Cemetery in Monterey. The Mission Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to heart and lung associations of the donor's choice.

Joseph J. Shebl

The Rosary was recited Oct. 2 at Carmel Mission Basilica, and a Mass of Christian burial was celebrated Oct. 3 at the mission, for Dr. Joseph J. Shebl who died Sept. 29 at his home in Carmel. He was 75.

Dr. Shebl, a radiologist and an award-winning sculptor, was the founder of Salinas Valley Radiology. He was past president of several medical organizations, including the Monterey County Medical Society, the Monterey Academy of Medicine and the Monterey Chapter of the American Cancer Society.

He also served as head of the radiology department and chief of staff at Salinas Valley Memorial Hospital, where he received a citation for outstanding service.

Born May 28, 1913 in Crete, Neb., he was a graduate of Creighton University School of Pharmacy, Creighton University School of Medicine, and the University of Pennsylvania Graduate School of Medicine.

He served in the South Pacific during World War II, as a major in the U.S. Army Medical Corps.

In 1960, he began the first University of California-approved X-ray technician training program at Hartnell College.

His bronze sculptures, depicting themes of the American West, are shown in many galleries and museums in the southwestern United States and have been pictured in a number of books on the subject, including "The Cowboy in Art."

He was certified by the American Board of Radiology and was a member of the American College of Radiology.

Survivors include his wife, Mary Ellen; two sons, Dr. James Shebl of Stockton and Dr. John Shebl of Salinas; a daughter, Catherine Olson of Mission Viejo; and seven grandchildren.

Burial took place at San Carlos Cemetery. The Mission Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

The family suggests memorial contributions to the Palma High School Academic Scholarship Fund or the Priests' Retirement Fund, c/o Carmel Mission, or a chairty of the donor's choice.

Albert W. Strahorn

Albert Wesley, a resident of Del Mesa Carmel for the past 15 years, died Sept. 22 in Community Hospital of the Monterey Peninsula. He was 82.

Born Dec. 15, 1905 in Delaware, he was general manager of Atlas Chemical Industries in Taiwan before moving to Carmel.

Survivors include his wife, Joann; a son, Eddy of Taiwan; a daughter, Lucy of Taiwan; and three grandchildren.

At his request, no services took place. The Paul Mortuary was in charge of arrangements.

Christian Science lecture set

The first Christian Science service of record in Carmel, was held in May 1902 at the Pine Inn.

A few years later, the congregation at First Church of Christ, Scientist sponsored their first public lecture on Christian Science. Since then, these lectures have been held in the Carmel community each year.

In the late 1800s Christian Science lectures were introduced at a time of great public interest in the new denomination, which had been founded in Boston in 1879. Newspaper records regarding adherents' practice of Christian healing were widespread. The lectures offered the public the opportunity to hear first-hand accounts of what Christian Science teaches.

Saturday's lecturer, John Grant of Oakland, will speak on "How Our Spiritual Innocence Sets Us Free."

First Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmel, has scheduled Grant's lecture at 11 a.m. Saturday, Oct. 22 at Sunset Center auditorium, Ninth and San Carlos in Carmel. It will last one hour.

The public is invited to attend. There is no charge and child care will be provided.

FATHER FARRELL'S WISDOM

Help us to smile

Carmel Pine Cone
Sept. 8, 1983

In Ireland, Daniel O'Connell, who died in 1847, is still held in great esteem as the "liberator," as a politician, orator and great wit. He was born in Cahirciveen County Kerry, in 1775 and he was an ancestor of Monsignor Michael O'Connell of Carmel Mission, a charter member of the Rotary Club.

Daniel O'Connell had charisma. He was able to win over his political enemies in the British House of Parliament by his charm. He once described an adversary as having a smile as cold as the glint of a winter sun on the leaden nameplate of a coffin.

We all have met men who are surly, who scowl through life, who wear an expression like a gray mask with a built-in frown. In this new year of 1983 we are going to encounter trials, tribulations and sorrows. However, we can handle them if we resolve to accept them and come to terms with them in the spirit of optimism and joyful hope of a Daniel O'Connell.

Oh Lord, every time we decide to throw a live hand grenade of anger or sarcasm at a neighbor, remind us that both of us can be blown up by the blast. Oh Lord, help us to smile as we forgive and forget; it's good strategy, and it's good religion.

The granite bridge built across the River Liffey in the heart of Dublin is named in honor of the witty liberator, Daniel O'Connell. No one ever remembers the name of his glum and morbid enemy. I wonder why? Amen.

The Golden Years

By Myles Williams

Seventy-year-old former governor of Pennsylvania William W. According to the Boston University Medical Center, when people retire they feel aches and pains they didn't notice earlier in life. To remedy these problems, most turn to their personal physicians, but others medicate with over-the-counter drugs. Researchers at BUMC stress, however, that it is always best to see a doctor if the problem persists.

CRITIC AT LARGE

By Mac McDonald

Crash landing

THAT AWFUL sound you just heard was the Monterey Film Festival crashing to the ground with frustrating and painful finality.

Yes, it's true, after only two years the festival that Jimmy Stewart supposedly called the "best in the world" has met its ignominious end, dying from crushing debts and a leadership in disarray. (see David Leland's story in this issue).

After incurring almost $200,000 worth of debts as a result of the second annual event in February, the festival — even with a virtually new board — was eventually done in by its own past mismanagement, wasteful ways and appalling lack of leadership. The new board tried to right itself, but it was like bailing water from a sinking ship with teaspoons. The damage had already been done.

The trouble started almost immediately after the first festival (which, by the way, was a success), with political infighting, clashing of personalities and power plays. Two executive directors, a handful of board members and several thousand dollars later, the festival deemed itself ready to go with a second festival the likes you have never seen, with parties and stars galore. Films? Yeah, there were those too.

The board was reorganized, Frohman Academy director Mikel Pippi was brought on board to helm the ship and it was full speed ahead, captain.

The festival itself went in fits and starts: the parties were glittery and grandiose affairs, the film selection was good overall, but manhandled in the scheduling and presentation end of it, and the communication between virtually all corners (festival to theaters, volunteer to participants, festival to news media, etc.) was botched. But some of those things can be worked out over time — you can't expect a film festival in only its second year to run like clockwork.

The really bad news, however, came several weeks after the end of the festival. At first festival organizers tried to keep a low profile, quietly sending out letters to creditors asking them to have patience. The only problem was that there were a few news organizations on the creditors list. The news was out: the festival had racked up an astounding debt as a result of the second festival: almost $200,000.

Bills ranged from potted plants, decorations and ballroom rentals to designer pizza and ribs flown in from Los Angeles. There was obviously no accounting of who spent how much on what. "Go ahead, bill me" should have been the festival's motto.

Now the sad part is that not only will creditors probably not see dime one of the money owed them, but chances of reviving the festival in the future (even on a much smaller scale), are slim and slimmer. In fact, apparently the name itself — the Monterey Film Festival — cannot be used in the future.

I do agree with the president of the current board, who said (page 1) that there may not be enough community support for a festival "of this magnitude" on the peninsula, magnitude being the operative word here. Where I don't agree with him is that there is no community support for a film festival on the peninsula. The support and enthusiasm for a film festival was there for the first one, and it continued through the second one...until it blew up in everyone's face. Those running the show the second year just bit off more than they could chew. Now all we're left with is a meager pile of crumbs.

In the future let's hope that those few brave souls attempting to mount another film festival on the peninsula put as much emphasis on the film as they do on the festival.

THE FINALS of the KWAV Comedy Laugh-Off is set for 8 p.m. Sunday, Oct. 23 at The Club of Monterey on Alvarado.

Fifty-two comedians from both the Monterey Bay and San Francisco Bay areas competed in the three-day semi-finals (one night each at the Club and Boiler Room in Monterey and the Cocoanut Grove in Santa Cruz), with six (two each night), making it to Sunday's finals.

The lucky six: Bobby Salem, Mickey Joseph, Joanie Rogers, Stephen B., Fred Reiss, and Monterey's own Bobby Dean.

Judges for the finals are, yours truly, producer Terry Melcher (who also happens to be Doris Day's son), actor Jeremy Slate of Guiding Light, entertainment agent John Kelly, Jane Murray of Pacific Monthly magazine and Bruce Labadie, PR man for Paul Masson.

One of the highlights of the evening should be a guest set by fast-rising comic Brian Copeland, winner of last year's KWAV Comedy Laugh-Off. Emcee for the evening will be that wacky, zany comedy commando Chicago Steve Barkley.

I'll let you know who came out on top.

Halloween is a great holiday for kids and alos an important time for adults to take precautions for the safety of both children and pets.
The SPCA of Monterey County recommends that pets be confined safely in the house for the night, ideally in a room away from the busy front door. Dogs, in particular, may resent the endless intrusions of strangers into their territory and become very anxious. Halloween candy should be kept out of pets' reach, chocolate in particular. If you want to treat the pets, The SPCA suggests stocking up on dog biscuits or catnip toys — treats with no tricks attached.
The SPCA of Monterey County, A Humane Society and The Carmel Pine Cone/Pacific Grove Monarch as well as the merchants on this page present this monthly feature.
Visit The SPCA shelter, 1002 Monterey Salinas Highway 68, across from the Laguna Seca Recreation Area entrance, Monday thru Friday, 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. or Weekends, 11 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Beach Boy constructs high-tech Big Sur studio

By DAVID LELAND

THERE ARE many distinct advantages to being a member of the Beach Boys. One of those perks is the luxury of having a recording studio in your own home.

For the past 27 years Al Jardine, currently a part-time Big Sur resident, has been harmonizing and playing guitar with one of the world's most popular groups. He recently realized a longstanding dream when he installed a state-of-the-art studio in the building he calls the Red Barn on his Big Sur Ranch.

"Maybe the studio will be a magnet for other artists," suggests Jardine, in an interview before a recent Beach Boys concert at Great America in Santa Clara. "I see Big Sur as being a very creative place."

ARTS & LEISURE

Since moving into the historic house of John Pfeiffer, one of Big Sur's original settlers, in the early '70s, Jardine has become aware that the small coastal community provides a hub of positive energy.

"I think Big Sur is the microcosm of the creative process," says Jardine, who still wears the same style of striped shirts the Beach Boys popularized in the early '60s. "The studio is the microcosm of that process."

Indeed, if peace and tranquility are vital ingredients for creativity, Jardine's ranch provides the ideal setting.

Part of a complex including 130-year-old buildings, lush grounds, horses and a modern home replete with satellite dish, the studio serves as a venture into modern technology.

Jardine points out that he has no intention of selling studio time to outside musicians — this venture is one of pure enjoyment.

"My pals and I will use the studio as a basis for writing and producing concepts," explains Jardine, who divides his time between Big Sur, Scottsdale, Ariz. and more than 200 concert dates a year. "It allows us to have a certain amount of freedom."

He adds that hopes his new neighbor, rock star Peter Gabriel, will join him on some tracks sometime next year.

The idea of having a complete recording studio at his fingertips is nothing new to Jardine — most musicians would give their eye teeth for such opulence.

During the late '60s, while staying at Beach Boy Brian Wilson's home, Jardine had the opportunity to experiment with one of his ideas on Wilson's 24-track remote studio.

The result: Come Go With Me, a remake of a Del Vikings song, which catapulted the Beach Boys onto the charts.

"If you have the tools of the trade with you it works," says Jardine, who says that before their current concert tour the Beach Boys recorded their rehearsals in the Red Barn.

•

WHILE A large part of the barn has served as a rehearsal studio for more than a decade, the newly installed control room with a 24-track board marks a throughly modern technical achievement.

With an initial design by Los Angeles architect George Augsberger, the primary audio consultant on the 1½-year project was Pete Slauson, a Marin County recording engineer and owner of Wizards & Cecil B studio.

Slauson paid meticulous attention to seemingly trivial details, such as the separation of the control room from the playing area.

"This room is floating," beams Slauson, who designed a four-track studio for Jardine 13 years ago. "It is mounted on mechanical rubber — none of the walls touch the exterior, so sound can't be transfered through the walls."

He also designed the room in a fashion so the sound coming into the room over the two 1,200-watt speakers is not affected by the surface of the wall.

Also, not one nail found its way into the recent work, which was carried out by Phaez Contstruction, Inc. in Monterey.

"Nails can come loose and vibrate," confirms Slauson, who adds that the screws are also glued in place. "Screws don't come lose."

Future plans call for the installation of a whirlpool, sauna and exercise room for the musicians to use during recording sessions.

Another interesting quirk in Jardine's studio, Slauson says, is the idea that there are windows in the control room.

"Usually you don't want to see the light of day," explains Slauson, of the idea that some recording sessions last through the night and into the early morning.

Slauson gestures to the 180-degree panorama that takes in Bear Kills Two Calf Creek and then appears to understand Jardine's reasoning of wanting a view of the outside world.

"The Beach Boys don't have to work all night," he says. "They're not a band trying to make it."

While Jardine declined to comment on the price tag of his studio, it is rumored that costs have exceeded $1 million.

"It's a wonderful luxury," says Jardine. "It's also a little like a child — it takes massive transfusions of money to keep it healthy."

Slauson adds that the work was complicated somewhat by Jardine requiring that much of the original wood, honed a century ago by Pfeiffer on the property, remain intact.

"I just wanted to create some stress-free music in the Red Barn," says Jardine. "Little did I know the technical miracle that would have to take place."

In addition to installing 3/4 of a mile of electrical conduit, builders had to shore up the structure, which was leaning over two feet.

•

ONE OF the immediate beneficiaries of the Red Barn is Jardine's youngest boy, Adam, a senior at Carmel High School, who has been laying down some tracks of late.

"He has a wonderful time there and he learns a lot," says Jardine. "I was extremely impressed with the quality of material he has written."

Along with asking local cronies to join in the action, Jardine hopes that Big Sur will not be too inconvenient for his friends who reside in Los Angeles.

"We're a very good juxtaposition between L.A. and San Francisco so there should be no shortage of talent," explains Jardine, who currently spends about one month a year at the ranch.

Whatever art comes forth from his new studio, Jardine says the idea is to promote togetherness.

"First you need the party, then you need people to come to the party, then you need to develop a liaison," says Jardine. "We should all help each other."

THE FRANZ Liszt Orchestra will perform at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 20 at the Sunset Center in Carmel in the second concert of the 1988 season for the Carmel Music Society. The 17-member ensemble, which is "conductor-less," is led by maestro Janos Rolla.

Orchestra from Hungary slates Carmel concert stop

THE CARMEL Music Society presents the second concert in its 1988 season at 8 p.m. Thursday Oct. 20 at Sunset Center, Carmel with the Budapest Chamber Orchestra "FRANZ LISZT."

One of the world's great chamber ensembles, the Franz Liszt regularly tours major cities worldwide and has more than 100 recordings on the Hungaroton, Erato and EMI labels.

The New York Times states: "The players work well together as precisely as a string quartet of long standing, making all the minute fluctuations of tempo as one and producing a tone at once warm and homogenous. Their style has conviction and elegance whether Vivaldi or Bartok. They played with enthusiasm and so freely that they both entertained and richly expressive."

Janos Rolla, the orchestra's music director, carries on the tradition of the late maestro Frigyes Sandor, under whose guidance and inspiration the orchestra was founded in 1962. Rolla keeps the sixteen strings and harpsichord soloist perfectly together with the tiniest gestures, guiding the conductor-less ensemble. Rolla, along with all the members of the orchestra, has performed many times as soloist with the orchestra. The Franz Liszt performs more than 30 concerts a year in Budapest, and has a repertoire which spans the history of music from Monteverdi, Bach and Vivaldi, to Mozart, the Romantics and the 20th century composers.

Tickets for the concert and the remaining five in this year's series may be obtained by calling the society at 625-9938 or at Do Re Mi, the Barnyard, Center Stage and Carmel Music Co. (formerly Bartlett's).

Annie-Sophie Mutter, violinist: Yo-Yo Ma, cellist; Emanuel Ax, pianist; Neil Rutman, pianist, the Society's piano competition concert and Derek Anthony, bass fill out the remaining season.

Annual ceremonies pay tribute to Robinson Jeffers

THE TENTH Annual October Robinson Jeffers Tor House Foundation dinner and program will be held Saturday evening at 6:30 Oct. 22, in the Casa Fiesta Room at Hacienda Carmel.

The program will feature environmentalist and poet, Joseph Langland of Amherst, Mass. and Tim Hunt, poet and chief editor of the new Stanford University Press edition of the Collected Poetry of Robinson Jeffers. The evening promises to hold strong appeal for environmentalists as well as for those attracted to the literature of nature and the influence of Robinson Jeffers.

Also part of the October series of events will be a book-signing reception at the Thunderbird Bookshop in the Barnyard at Carmel, where William Everson and Tim Hunt will be present. Everson is the author of The Excesses of God: Robinson Jeffers as a Religious Figure. The reception will be held on Friday, Oct. 21, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. And on Sunday morning, Oct. 23, Professor John Dotson will conduct the annual Poetry Walk.

The emphasis of Langland's appearance at the dinner on the 22nd will be on the importance of landscape and the sense of place in human life; the work of Jeffers and other selected writers will be considered in this context. The talk should be a stimulation to those of the local public resolved to perpetuate the Monterey/Big Sur coast as a natural habitat of national significance and regional benefit.

Langland is the author of numerous books which include Anybody's Song (in the National Poetry Series), The Wheel of Summer (a National Book Award nomination), Poet's choice (with Paul Engle), Green Town. Of Langland's work Publisher's Weekly has said: "Nature and the depth of our relationship with it...is movingly and keenly perceived." His work has appeared in the Atlantic, Nation, New Yorker, and other publications. Langland is a recipient of the Amy Lowell, Ford Faculty, and National Council for the Arts fellowships, of the Melville Cane Award for Poetry, New England Living Artist Award, and other honors.

For information telephone 624-1813, or write to Tor House Foundation, Box 1887, Carmel, CA 93921. A ticket ($25 per person) includes a social hour with full bar, buffet dinner, and the guest speakers' program. Early reservations are advised because seating is limited.

Author signs book about golden age of radio

RADIO-DAYS HISTORIAN and author Tom Price will be the guest of the Thunderbird Bookshop at a booksigning from 12:30 to 2:30 p.m. Saturday, Oct. 22.

Price did the research for Heavenly Days, the authorized biography of Jim and Marian Jordan. The Jordans, loved by radio fans in the 1930s, 40s, and 50s were best known as Fibber McGee and Molly.

Heavenly Days traces the Jordan's comedy and personal lives from the beginning of their career through radio's Golden Age. More than a hundred photographs depict them in the spotlight with many other famous personalities of the time.

Price, also a junior high school teacher, became fascinated by radio comedy and drama as a boy. His fascination became a life-long research project. Through extensive interviews with Jim Jordan, the days of Fibber McGee and Molly, their success and behind-the-scenes anecdotes have been chronicled in print.

The Thunderbird is located in The Barnyard between Rio Road and Carmel Valley Road off of Highway 1. For more information call 624-8886.

Criona brings lively strains of Celtic music to Cherry Hall

DRAGGING IRISH folk music kicking and screaming into the 20th century, Criona has made the ancient Celtic melodies popular with a new generation.

The two-woman band, Pat O'Scannell and Sue Carney of Ashland Ore., will perform in the finest raucous Irish tradition 8 p.m. Friday, Oct. 21 at the Cherry Foundation, Carmel.

And though the distinction between music that sounds traditionally Irish and music that is Irish may be a subtle one, it's crystal clear to Carney and O'Scannell.

"We're not trying to imitate Irish music. We're trying to do it," says Carney, who recently returned to her native Oregon after she and O'Scannell toured through Ireland, Scotland and Wales to hone their music to fit the traditional tune performed throughout the British Isles.

Performing on a variety of instruments, including the tin whistle, bodhran, sideburn guitar and bones, the duet retains the romanticism inherent in the delicate strains of Irish Folk while displaying all of the rollicking fun.

O'Scannell, who has performed Elizabethan music for audiences at the Ashland festival for seven years, performs vocals and plays guitar, pennywhistle, bones and viola da gamba (a Rennaissance cello-like stringed instrument). She also has directed concerts of traditional Irish and Scottish music for the festival and co-produced Criona's album, The Old Man's Teeth.

In addition to performing nightly at the Shakespearean Festival, Sue Carney has toured extensively playing music of the British Isles as well as co-producing Criona's records. Carney performs vocals and plays pennywhistle, clarinet, dulcean (an ancient bassoon-type reed instrument), bodhran and Scottish side-drums.

The concert begins at 8 p.m. in Cherry Hall, Fourth and Guadalupe, Carmel.

Admission is $6 for adults, $4 for students, seniors and the military, and $1 for children.

Theater of My Mind

Theater of My Mind, Vera Stugg Taicher's one-woman dramatization of her collected poems, will be presented in two performances at Cherry Hall in Carmel. Theater of My Mind will be staged at 8 p.m. Thursday and Saturday, Oct. 20 and 22.

Incorporating props, movement and music, Taicher enacts scenes from her first book of poetry, "From Silhouette to Sunlight," as well as her latest collection, "Journey from Within." The production is directed by Keith Decker.

Calling her writing "non-fiction poetry," Taicher says her poems are cautionary tales of "what can happen if you do love yourself and what can happen if you don't."

Admission is $6 general and $4 for students, seniors and the military.

The Way of the World

The Staff Players Repertory Co. opening production of its 1988-89 Subscription Series, the comedy The Way of the World by William Congreve, continues with a performance at 8 p.m. Thursday, Oct. 20.

After 20 years of the Puritans the English theaters of Charles II's Restoration went a bit wild — like children out of school, anything became possible. The elegance of clothes, wit and language dominated the scene for more than 50 years, by turns clever and amoral. And for the first time, the presence of real actresses on the stage delighted the sophisticated audiences and changed the course of dramatic development.

Way of the World plays Thursdays through Saturdays at 8 p.m. and Sunday afternoons at 2:30, through Nov. 13 at the Indoor Forest Theatre in Carmel. The cast includes Ann Mattingly, Connie Erickson, Marlie Avant, Karyn Olson, Nancy Kocher, Susan Crain and Barbara Zito on the distaff side. James Brady, Norman Stottmeister, Kevin Hanstick, Jason Bond, Ellis Allbee, Jeff Hudelson and Ivan Flansburg are on the gentlemen's roster.

For information and reservations call 624-1531. Tickets are $9 general, $7 students and seniors.

'Theater of My Mind'

VERA STUGG Taicher stars in Theater of My Mind, staged Thursday and Saturday at Cherry Hall in Carmel. The production is a one-woman dramatization of her collected poems. For reservations, call 649-5561 or 624-7491.

Quilters

Monterey Peninsula College will stage Quilters, a story of love, lively humor and the moving spectacle of simple human dignity in the face of adversity.

Ostensibly the story of a pioneer woman and her six daughters, Quilters blends a series of scenes into a rich mosaic that captures the sweep and beauty, the challenge and rewards of the American West.

Curtain time is at 8 p.m. Thursday through Saturday and 2 p.m. Sunday on the main stage at Monterey Peninsula College, located at 980 Fremont St., Monterey. Tickets are $12 general; $9 for students, military and seniors age 60 and up; and $6 for children 13 and under.

For tickets call Center Stage Ticketing, 649-5561. For season ticket information, call 646-4213.

Beyond Therapy

The Village Players' production of Charles Durang's hilarious adult comedy Beyond Therapy will be performed at the Carmel Valley Community Center on Saturday, Oct. 22, and Sunday, Oct. 23 at 8:30 p.m. The production continues weekends through Oct. 30.

Directed by Linda Prejean, the production features a cast of Chris Anderson, Martha Aldrich, Sean Butler, Laura McCallum, Gordon Kramer, and Mark Himelrick.

Refreshments will be available at the community center. This is an adult comedy, not suitable for children. Tickets are $8. For reservations or more information, call 626-0207.

Preschool creative dance begins

Carmel area preschool-age dancers are invited to attend the Recreation Department Creative Dance Class. It's a non-competitive class designed to allow the three- to five-year-old a format for creative expression. Class will include music from the classics through contemporary times as well as exercises for strength, agility and balance.

Preschool creative dance runs Tuesdays mornings, 10:30 to 11:15 a.m. at the Carmel Youth Center. To register, call the Carmel-by-the-Sea Recreation Department at 626-1255.

More classes set at Carmel Youth Center

The Carmel-by-the-Sea Recreation Department is seeking interested youth to participate in many fall activities. A new cooking class is scheduled for Saturdays running four weeks in October. "Junior Chef" will provide instruction in basic cooking techniques. Students 5-years-old through pre-teens will learn kitchen safety, how to read a recipe and prepare healthful snacks and simple meals.

Elementary school-aged youngsters also have a choice of art programs. "Painting and Drawing" runs Thursday afternoons for four weeks. In this class a variety of techniques will be taught which stress line, texture, form, space and color. "Art History" also is a four-week program which teaches the techniques associated with periods of history. Students will re-create the styles of such famous artists as Monet, Van Gogh and Picasso. The class is a fun way to gain greater appreciation of classical art.

The preschool set is not forgotten. "Arts and Crafts" is designed for children two and one-half years to five years. Creativity in a safe and warm environment is stressed. A class for parents and youngsters is scheduled. "Mom and Me (Daddy too!)" provides directed crafts programs which parents and children two to five year olds can make together.

Tennis and golf are also planned for elementary school students. Tennis is held on Tuesday and Thursday afternoon as well as Saturday mornings at the Mission Tennis Ranch. Junior golf runs Monday afternoons and Saturday mornings at Poppy Hills Golf Course.

The classes mentioned above as well as additional programs for youth and adults are listed in the fall recreation brochure. Class descriptions, times and fees are also contained in the brochure.

Brochures may be picked up at the recreation department, library or city hall.

For information call the Recreation Department at 626-1255.

Australian String Quartet makes music at Sunset Theater

THE AUSTRALIAN String quartet will open the 21st season of chamber music concerts at Sunset Theater, San Carlos and Ninth, Carmel, 8 p.m. Wednesday, Oct. 26. The concert is presented by the Chamber Music Society of the Monterey Peninsula.

The quartet, with William Hennessy, violin, Douglas Weiland, violin, Keith Crellin, viola, and Janis Laurs, cello, will play Mozart's Quartet in B flat major, K.458, The Hunt; Borodin's String Quartet No. 2; and Beethoven's String Quartet in F major, Opus 135.

Under the impetus of violinist William Hennessy, the Australian String Quartet came together in April 1985 for a year's intensive preparation for its first public concerts. The ensemble made its debut at the Adelaide Festival in March 1986 and quickly became a major force in Australian music with highly successful visits to all states of Australia and the Northern Territory. It appeared many times in Sydney, Melbourne, and Adelaide, as well as on radio and television.

Launching an international career, the quartet toured Shandung Province in China in 1987 and appeared in concerts in Beijing and Hong Kong. In early 1988 the group gave four recitals in London, followed by concerts in Paris, Berlin, Belgrade, Moscow, Leningrad, Budapest, and Warsaw.

1988 marked the quartet's North American tour, mainly in Western United States and Canada. Riding on a wave of critical acclaim, the quartet's rise in the concert world has been nothing short of meteoric.

William Hennessy, violin, has forged a distinguished career based mainly in Australia, leading most of the major chamber ensembles there either as a guest or in a permanent capacity. For three years he was a member of the Academy of St. Martin in the Fields, and for four and a half years was concertmaster of the Tasmanian Symphony Orchestra. He has given more than 100 solo performances with Australian orchestras.

Douglas Weiland, English violinist and composer, was deputy concertmaster of the Vienna Chamber Orchestra and for many years a member of the Academy of St. Martin in the Fields. His most recent work, In an Eden Hills Garden; Quintet Op. 4 for string quartet and voice, was premiered by the Australian String Quartet at the 1986 Adelaide Festival debut recital, and his String Quartet Op. 5 was performed in London in January, 1988.

Keith Crellin, viola, was a lecturer for 10 years at the Tasmanian conservatorium of music, and developed an impressive reputation as a teacher of viola. In that time, he also pursued an active performing career with regular concerts, broadcasts for the Australian Broadcasting Corporation and as a member of the Australian Contemporary Music Ensemble.

Memberships in the Chamber Music Society with admission to all concerts are $30. Single tickets are $10 ($5 for students under 21) at the door before each concert. For information call 625-2212.

THEATER REVIEW

By Joanne Tenenbaum

Vanished culture recreated in 'Quilters'

THE LIVES of American pioneer women and their vanished culture are recreated in Quilters, now in performance on Monterey Peninsula College's Main Stage. Directed by Nick Zanides, Quilters features a cast of seven women who portray an elderly woman and her six daughters. These seven portray, in turn, the characters in scenes introduced with blocks of quilting. The quilted blocks are a story in their own right, but I digress.

Sarah (Regina Hicks) has called together her six daughters to announce that she is about to sew her last quilt, "my legacy quilt," she says, because "each pattern has the thread of somebody's life running through it." As the quilted blocks are presented, scenes are enacted that depict the joys and hardships of American pioneer domestic life.

Playwrights Molly Newman and Barbara Damashek have pulled together material from a dozen sources and pieced it (if you will) into a rich composition, rounded out with music and dance movement. The quilt is a perfect symbol of early American women's self-definition, labor, and artistry, and the themes of each quilted block match the accompanying stories.

Quilters includes moments of joy, heartache, personal tragedy, and triumph over adversity. Examples: A mother of 11, trapped in her 12th pregnancy, finds support only in a risky "recipe" her sister sends her. A young girl, ashamed of her humble birth in a prairie dugout, spontaneously writes fiction, depicting a grander birthplace. A dying, demented young woman frantically quilts a butterfly to leave behind for her infant daughter. A young girl, trapped in a dugout with her sister's corpse, listens while her father skins their frozen cattle during a blizzard.

Against the background of such hardships, quilting emerges not only as a necessary labor, but as a comfort to the quilter and a medium for expressing her artistry. This central fact is strongly reinforced by the play's principal props, 17 luminous quilts stitched by members of the Monterey Peninsula Quilters Guild.

Virginia August, Kelley Knapp, Teresa McKillop, Elisa Swartz, Lyn Whiting and Jeanne Wooster are fine as Sarah's daugthers and the many other women whose stories they bring to life. Costume designer Constance Gamiere has dressed the women in calico dresses appropriate to the pioneer era, choreographer Laura McEvoy contributes dance movements that greatly enliven the material, and music director Murray C. Walker, abetted by Barney Hulse, Jo Ann LaTorra, Sandra May, and Kathy Nathan, furnishes subtle and appropriate musical accompaniment.

This production has an ease and polish borne of careful direction and long rehearsal, and it depicts the pioneer women's lives with grace and depth. A lovely evening, indeed. Saturday night's audience stood up to applaud.

County Symphony season opens

THE MONTEREY County Symphony's official season opened on Sunday, 16 October, at King Hall in Monterey. Clark Suttle is continuing as music director and conductor, there is a new executive director (Michael Winter), a new concertmistress (Diane Nicholeris) and a seasonful of popular soloists.

After a brisk "Star Spangled Banner," the concert commenced with The Moldau by Smetana. It was risky as an opener, as it starts quietly and rather insubstantially, but it was always under control and it was a good, clean performance. Especially noteworthy were the well-controlled inner parts and the shimmer of the middle section.

Lorne Monroe, principal cellist with the New York Philharmonic, joined the orchestra in the Elgar Concerto for Cello in E minor. Elgar-lovers no doubt were very happy, as it seemed to be well presented. Being an orchestral cellist, Munroe is perhaps not as showy or aggressive as many soloists, but he is a suave and intelligent musician. Personally, I don't care for the piece, finding it very difficult to follow.

After intermission, the orchestra returned to play a very fine Second Symphony of Schumann. Schumann's symphonies are not so tightly constructed as those of the Viennese classical composers, as he didn't really think like a symphonist, being more of a miniaturist. This creates problems for some conductors, but Suttle had the symphony in hand from the first note and coaxed a beautiful performance from his orchestra.

The first movement was presented in broad, warm strokes.

The scherzo was bright, featuring some excellent string work. The slow movement, Adagio espressivo, is built around a short, falling motive which is very poignant, as well as a longer melodic line. The winds get their big moments in this movement, and they made the most of it, the oboe solos being especially beautiful. A typical Schumann march movement closed the symphony.

The orchestra sounds really good at the beginning of the season. The string tone was warm and velvety. Intonation was consistently good and the playing was clean and precise. It looks like a good season.

BAY LIGHTS

By Ray Mungo

Shine on harvest moon

OK BOYS and girls, the party is Saturday night (Oct. 22) from 7 p.m. on and you're all invited for food, wine and friends celebrating the birthing of the new Pacific Monthly magazine at 205 17th St., Pacific Grove, high atop Ron's Liquors.

Yummies will be catered by Eric Strayer, former owner of Pearl Alley Bistro, wine will be poured from a keg, music is by the Orquestra Gitano and theatrical lighting by Dreamscape Lighting of Salinas. Partners Greg Johnson and Michael Taylor "light up your life," while publisher Scott MacClelland and editor Jonathan Drake host this free-for-all bash. Knock three times and whisper "Bay Lights sent us"...

THE CLOTHES Closet at 693 Lighthouse in Monterey (around the corner from the Dream Theater) is a gold mine for seekers of Halloween threads. This colorfully jam-packed emporium specializes in antique and vintage clothes, kitschy collectables, top hats, gold lame high heel shoes, outrageous formal wear, band leader coats, feather boas, bowler hats, mesh lingerie, Sherlock Holmes outfits, all kinds of wild and crazy stuff at prices higher than a thrift shop, but way a lot lower than Macy's.

Owner Gay Cameron confessed to being such a rummage sale nut that she and her actress daughter Linda Hearn filled three rooms of their house with items bought at garage sales before they opened the store. Most of their inventory is on consignment.

We purchased an authentic 1946 tuxedo with tails, matching black tie and cummerbund for less than the price of renting a tux for an evening, and wore them to the Tablescapes Gala with open toed Birkenstock sandals and our feet stickin' out. "How can you get away with that?" shrieked a prominent socialite, referring to our tootsies. "Birkenstocks are in this year," we protested. "Well, they somehow got in here," she replied...

JAZZ TIDES

By John Detro

Courageous commonness

CHARLES PARKER: cultural commando, fiery prophet of bebop and urban change, drug addict, loving father, wit, wastrel, womanizer whose charisma was legend. Everyone's life contains complexity, but this man's 34 years on earth (he died in 1955) were hotter and more layered than most of us can imagine. Would the filmic biography about him deserve wide attention if it hadn't been directed and produced by the charismatic, jazz-loving Clint Eastwood?

It would; yet it would for reasons that rather contradict reviews from the national media. I've cherished Parker's music since early boyhood and know his life story well. Paradoxically perhaps, those facts let me relax and view the Bird flick as if its materials were brand new. Most basic conclusion: this film's about a marriage first and about the pain-joy of artistic breakthrough after that. Jazz and the city night provide context; the most poignant and lasting images rise out of Bird's long union with his last ladylove — Chan Parker. And while the jazz movie Round Midnight now has the rep of an art film, Clint Eastwood's approach (his time-shifts and implicative touches and flat moody colors) gives us a ride that's much more literary, if you will, in its final effects.

Over the long run, I don't think Bird will be called Clint Eastwood's masterpiece. What it does is announce his entry onto the world level of film director as author (European sense). Today his directorial career contains the same potential for fascination as Woody Allen's. (Woody's Manhattan remains the most structurally perfect film I've seen. The Bird flick's right up there, as filmic architecture, with La Strada and Raging Bull and My Darling Clementine starring Henry Fonda as Wyatt Earp.)

For the record, last Friday's opening of Bird at Cinema 70 was a logistical mess. A qualified spokesman for United Artists Theaters had told this writer in two separate conversations that Golden Bough Cinema would be the place. The Golden Bough itself advertised the opening. The night before that local premiere, the site suddenly became Cinema 70. The wire had been out for days that Clint Eastwood preferred Cinema 70's Dolby sound system. No, the spokesman said — we've studied this matter and Golden Bough's our choice. It doesn't take a genius to figure out what happened. On Friday morning, the Monterey daily ran a big ad announcing the switch — with the wrong start time for the first show. KRML Jazz Radio did what it could by airing the facts as public service announcements. How sad that a significant film suffered such silliness — and on the director's home turf.

At any rate, actor Forest Whitaker's work in the title role deserves prizes far and wide. If the Academy Awards system has any clarity and justice, these too shall be nominated: Eastwood for direction, Diane Venora as Chan (best actress), Michael Zelniker as trumpeter Red Rodney (supporting actor), set designer Ed Carfagno (his 52nd Street fairly blows the mind), Lennie Niehaus (music), Jack Green (photography). The soundtrack album already looks like a monster seller. I'm not sure that general audiences will pick up from Bird what drives jazz musicians to battle all the odds — the music itself, the bandstand moment — but I'm glad that this brave project apparently shan't lose money. At the very least, Clint Eastwood has created an attitude of loving seriousness upon which future films about jazz can build.

"Drama depends upon the familiar," Aristotle taught — and it's within the familiar that Bird finds its deepest excellence. The Bird/Chan relationship demonstrates so much courageous commonness that its interraciality never, never seems remarkable. The film thus does sturdy service because, despite what we'd like to believe, too many Americans still fear and resent "mixed marriage." Bird and Chan fight, flirt, love, laze, play with their kids, mourn a daughter's death, party, worry, talk about fixing up the house. Chan in her lonely chair, while Bird's on the road or on a run through the bars, achieves a universality that just might make the jazz wife real for folks who know not much about the art form. In one scene she wears a '50s chenille bathrobe that's so domestic and plain that it's heartbreaking.

Whitaker's performance sustains rich artistry throughout — we know we are watching a star turn. Diane Venora, on the other hand, sometimes commands attention by giving in — by disappearing into her character's weariness. This's truly human stuff and demonstrates a genius-type grasp of the differences between acting for film and working in live theater. Vanessa Redgrave's the scene-stealer through silence; Venora's right on her heels. In fact, if Diane had been given one more short scene — a close-up coda after Charles Parker's death — this film could have been titled Bird and Chan. I would guess that Clint Eastwood knew so and preserved Bird's primacy by giving Chan just a quick takeout at the funeral — a crowd shot round the casket, at that.

The real Chan Parker, of course, lives in Paris and contributed to Bird in no small way — unreleased recordings, her written memories of the marriage, time with Diane as coach. Bird almost becomes the real Chan's statement to the world and Venora's personal triumph.

Reminding. KRML's Johnny Adams was at the opening with his tape recorder, collecting reactions from viewers. His special show on the event and the film's music may be heard from 4-7 p.m. tomorrow (10/21) over 1410 AM.

A MAJOR benefit for Monterey County AIDS Project will be held on Saturday night, Oct. 29, in the Sheraton Hotel's San Carlos Ballroom. And because Ron Daniels got involved—right up to his chin—jazz will play a strong role.

Ron's a longtime jazz producer, photographer and technical consultant (field coverage of live events), whose radio interview shows have centered in recent years on community resources. He got aboard for this benefit as soon as General Chairperson Karen Morales of Crossroads Travel put out the wire that her energies and caring would point in that direction.

Karen: "Life has given me a lot — this's one way I can give something back." Ron: "Some straight-ahead jazz people responded immediately on a volunteer basis. Coordinating that part of the program has meant some work, but these specials are fun too."

So. What we have coming down the pike is entitled the 1988 Mardi Gras Masquerade Ball—co-sponsored by KMST-TV and KXDC Radio. Costume: carnival masquerade or formal masked wear.

Judges will check out colorful garb and award prizes accordingly. Four-course Cajun meal provided by Louisiana Territory in Mountain View; wines courtesy of Ventana Vineyards. Hurricanes (dynamite New Orleans punch), also available along with no-host bar or non-alcoholic drinks. The DiFranco Dancers plan a performance that, at points, will break the invisible wall between artists and audience.

Now for the jazz. Swinging vocalists Scotty Wright and Lil Brown will be backed in separate sets by a knockout group: Bill Jackson (vibes), John Cortes (saxes), Loren Pickford (piano), Bryan McConnell (bass), Roland Allen (drums). And Ron said guitarist John T. Smith, out of Berkeley High and the Monterey Jazz Festival 1988 Student All-Stars, agreed to appear. Fetching Carmel Valley singer Kathy Knight plans show tunes as part of her "Marilyn Monroe tribute."

Playing for the earlier reception will be such imported jazz instrumentalists as Perry Thorsell (Mountain View bassist), Peter Spitzer (clarinet stylist from San Carlos), John Capobianco (San Francisco trumpeter)—and state Sen. Henry Mello (Watsonville) at the piano. European vocalist Jane Myrengret also will share substantial skills during this segment.

The whole thing's kick-off time has been set at 7:30. Donations: $50 per person in advance (through Monterey's Center Stage Ticketing) and $60 per at the door. Call 624-5434 or 649-5561 with any questions.

"Dinner seating's limited," Karen noted. "We suggest that people contact Center Stage right away."

"The jazz part's ready," Ron emphasized. "Wait'll you hear the sets these professionals have put together."

PUBLIC NOTICE

NOTICE OF DEATH OF IRENE ANNETTE MANSKE, aka IRENE A. AND OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE CASE NO. MP 10705 Filed Oct. 5, 1988

1. To all heirs, beneficiaires, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate (specify all names by which decedent was known):
IRENE ANNETTE MASNKE, aka IRENE A. MANSKE.
2. A petition has been filed by ROBERT F. MANSKE in the Superior Court of Monterey County requesting that ROBERT F. MANSKE be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
3. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority allows the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain actions, however, the personal representative is required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to this petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
4. A hearing on the petition will be held on 11/4/88 at 9:30 a.m. at 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, California 93940.
5. IF YOU OBJECT to granting of the petition, you should either appear at the hearing and state your objection or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
6. IF YOU ARE A CREDTITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court or present it to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. NOTICE OF DEATH OF ELEANOR THOMPSON AKA ANNE ELEANOR THOMPSON AND OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF CHARLES L. MOORE CASE NO. MP 10717 Filed Oct. 17, 1988

1. To all heirs, beneficiaires, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate ELEANOR THOMPSON AKA ANNE ELEANOR THOMPSON.
2. A petition has been filed by CHARLES L. MOORE in the Superior Court of Monterey County requesting that CHARLES L. MOORE be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.
3. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority allows the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain actions, however, the personal representative is required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to this petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.
4. A hearing on the petition will be held on Nov. 10, 1988 at 9:30 a.m. at 1200 Aguajito Road, Monterey, California 93940.
5. IF YOU OBJECT to granting of the petition, you should either appear at the hearing and state your objection or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.
6. IF YOU ARE A CREDTITOR or a contingent creditor of the deceased, you must file your claim with the court or present it to the personal representative appointed by the court within four months from the date of first issuance of letters as provided in section 9100 of the California Probate Code. The time for filing claims will not expire prior to four months from the date of the hearing noticed above.
7. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a formal Request for Special Notice of the filing of an inventory and appraisement of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in section 1250 of the California Probate Code. # Rule One: Don't Throw Stones

Michael Bolton, the innovative Carmel architect, has created two quiet remarkable houses at the corner of Scenic Drive and 13th Street. Both feature great expanses of glass, divided and supported by decorative and delicate steel framework, both offering maximum views of Carmel Bay just across the road.

Only one is for sale, the second and slightly smaller residence just south of the corner. In addition to its generous use of glass, it stresses marble floor and a profligate use of copper.

The house rises two stories from street level. The second floor, which contains the master suite, the library and a spectacular double bath, can be reached by two devices: an open Spanish-style staircase that goes up at the right, or an inside elevator that begins at the underground garage and lifts you to the first and second levels.

The living room is a showcase, set apart somewhat from the rest of the house and facing the sea. Its walls are glass, supported by decorative steel muntins, rising to the top of the walls and then going a little farther to the flat roof. The floors are smooth marble blocks. Two 12 foot doors open to a protected interior patio with a decorative pool.

The fireplace can only be described in high fashion terms. It's "layered," with a wide mantel of copper, topped by two set-backs, then a rise to a ceiling-high copper chimney breast.

The marble block floor continues past an intimate dining room and leads to the extraordinary kitchen. This has tailored wood cabinets all about, absolute top-of-the-line appliances, convenient work spaces, and window lighting all around the counters.

There are two bedrooms on this level, one with its own fireplace. Lots of closet space, and a bathroom which serves these rooms and is also the guest bath. There's a wet bar in the dining room.

The second floor has a library with its own fireplace, number three in the house, and the master suite. This bedroom faces the sea and has a small sundeck at the top of the stair. This room opens to a memorable double bath: two spacious sinks on opposite sides, a bidet, Jacuzzi, shower, tub and spacious dressing room.

Lighting throughout the house comes from spots sunk into the ceilings, most of them equipped with dimming switches. This place is one of a kind and, when you see it, you'll see why it's priced at $1,450,000.

A RENAISSANCE OF INSPIRED LIVING!

This ocean-view estate is reminiscent of castles on the Scottish Highlands! A spectacular main residence of stone, set on 7½ acres of pine and cypress forest, is permeated with the aura of the 1920's! Charming and dramatic rooms, arches, windows, and views will delight and surprise you! This property also includes a "party house," and guest house/carriage house, all beautifully crafted with the 1920's style! A classic and important piece of real estate! $1,975,000

AS THOUGH A QUEEN IN COURT

The surrounding homes defer to this stately landmark property. Sited within an estate in excess of four ordinary Carmel-sized lots, White House is as sturdy as a ship's keel and as timeless as the surrounding oaks. Recently remodeled, the rugged hand hewn redwood siding now coexists with Gagenau appliances and Karistan carpet. The simplicity of the original plank floors is accentuated with granite and marble in the kitchen and baths. Hinges and locks from London, England; TV projection room surround-sound from Dolby; and a separate cottage for guests or staff. A showcase residence yet one of Carmel's most practical three bedroom family homes. $795,000

PRIVACY — CONVENIENCE — AND POINT LOBOS VIEWS

All are available in this delightful, light and airy custom tri-level home! Ready for you to move in! A liveable family floor plan with 3 bedrooms, 2 and ½ baths, lots of storage, oversized two-car garage, and easy-care ground. Close to shopping and schools! Vistas from most every room! Competitively priced at $499,500.

CRASHING SURF, WILD SUNSETS, GLORIOUS TRANQUILITY.

Fifteen minutes and ten miles from Carmel, yet one feels 100 miles from civilization. A fabulous two and one-half acre lot hugging Rocky Point with approximately 600 feet along the Pacific Ocean looking North and South along this world famous scenic coast. View the whales, otters, sea lions, sea birds, ships, sails and surging sea.
Plans and permits are set to construct a world class home with views forever. Live in the existing guest house while your dream castle is created before your eyes.
$816,000

Peninsula Mortgage Corp. is a one-stop operation

THERE'S REALLY no reason to travel from bank to bank in search of the most efficient real estate loan — step up to Peninsula Mortgage.

Located in the financial section of Carmel Valley, behind The Crossroads shopping center, Peninsula Mortgage offers every type of home loan.

"We're a one-stop operation," says owner Tom O'Meara, who moved into his current location in August. "We're the only company in the state where one phone call can get you any type of real estate loan."

O'Mera points to loans that include construction, land, single family, seconds, small and large commercial ventures, feature loans and loans for non-conforming projects.

"We can do those types of loans anywhere in California," boasts O'Mera, who adds that with so many types of loans to choose from it's easy to qualify.

Says O'Mera, "We haven't turned down a loan in three years."

On Oct. 16, Peninsula Mortgage opened an additional store in Salinas to serve inland residents.

Open six days a week, Peninsula Mortgage is located at 26619 Carmel Center Place, Suite 200. Phone: 624-0600.

Applying for first home loan need not be intimidating process

IT'S NEVER too early to begin planning for a home — especially if it's your first venture into the world of real estate.

Lenders are often more particular when it comes to offering financial assistance for first-time buyers who have not yet established themselves as mortgage holders.

But never fear, with proper planning you can meet the lofty experience of filling out your loan application head-on.

A few tips are in order:

• Credit History. A prospective home buyer cannot afford to wait until he fills out his loan application to find out about his credit history.

Credit agencies are obligated by law to furnish you with a copy of your credit profile, usually for a small price (less than $10).

It is important to clear up any credit problems, have the company sign off the matter, and for you to provide an explanation as to why you were late with the payments.

" 'I forgot,' is not considered an adequate explanation," says Kevin Mee, loan officer for First Western Bank.

HIGHER RATES. SHORTER WAITS.

It's been a waiting game. You've been waiting for certificate of deposit rates to go up because you didn't want to wait years to get a good return. Well, now Home Federal is offering CDs that are ahead of their time. They are so different, in fact we've given them a different name: Insured Term Accounts.

So wait no longer. For a limited time, HomeFed will pay you our high one-year rate for a six-month investment or, a high three-year rate for a two-year investment.

Open your ITA with just $2,500. If you have more, you'll earn more, because Home Federal ITAs pay higher rates on higher balances. And you always earn the highest possible yield because we compound your interest daily.

Now if that interest is important for you to use, you'll be glad to know you can withdraw your credited interest whenever you wish.

And though free checking and special services are just wishful thinking at other institutions, HomeFed makes them a reality. Just open an ITA with $5,000 or more and you'll have all the special advantages of our Investor Club.

Call HomeFed today to open your account. Or visit the nearest office. Tomorrow you could be earning higher rates without the wait.

| Term: 6 up to 12 months |
|---|
| $20,000 |
| Rate 8.25% |
| Yield* 8.60% |
| Defer your earnings until 1989. Ask us how. |

*Yield based on principal and interest remaining on deposit for one year, and rate remains constant. Substantial interest penalty for early withdrawal required. Rates and yields subject to change daily but guaranteed constant upon opening your account.

Deadline approaches on sale of incorporated businesses

TERRY M. Mallery, who is located at 26615 Carmel Center Place, Suite 101, Carmel, can help you untangle the various ins and outs of the complex Tax Reform Act of 1986, especially when it comes to the sale of corporate businesses.

IF YOU thought that you had heard more than you ever wanted to know about the Tax Reform Act of 1986, here is one more topic that was just one of hundreds of changes in the new law, but is at the forefront now because of an upcoming deadline.

In a nutshell, the new law modified the rule regarding the sale of corporate businesses, and added a corporate-level tax which did not previously exist. So the bad news is that if you sell the assets of your incorporated business in the future, you will have to pay an additional tax that you would not have had to pay in the past. The good news is that there is still a window of opportunity to avoid this extra tax, if you act soon.

Example: Assume that you bought a small business for $50,000, and incorporated soon thereafter. You are now thinking of selling the business, and estimate that your selling price will be $150,000. That means that you have $100,000 in potential gain, disregarding depreciation and other adjustments. If you sell the business this year, your federal tax bite will be $28,000, assuming a marginal rate of 28 percent. However, if you sell the same assets after Jan. 1, 1989, the corporation would first have to recognize the $100,000 gain, and assuming a marginal rate of 34 percent, would pay a tax of $34,000. The remaining sales proceeds (net of the taxes paid), would be distributed to you, and you would personally pay an additional $18,480 on the transaction. The total taxes paid, both corporate and individual, would be $52,480, almost twice the tax that you would pay on a sale in 1988.

Let's look at some options:

IF YOU ARE CONSIDERING SELLING YOUR BUSINESS:

Attempt to close the sale before Jan. 1, 1989. If you are selling the assets of your business, as is usually the case, you will save a substantial amount of money if you close the deal before Jan. 1, 1989, as shown by the example above. If you have an opportunity to sell your stock in the corporation rather than selling the assets of the business, the new law will not affect the sale directly. However, because of certain elections available to your corporate buyer of stock, the law change will indirectly affect even this type of sale.

Ifyou don't have a buyer yet, but may sell your business in the next few years, you still have a couple of options.

The first is to change from the corporate form of ownership into a partnership or sole proprietorship. This is very advantageous if you sell the business within the next year, since there will be only one tax on the transaction, as under the old law. Even if the assets of the business are not sold within the next year, the liquidation now can have the effect of minimizing or eliminating tax on the liquidation, thereby leaving you with essentially one tax.

Another option if you are contemplating selling the business in the future but have not located a buyer, is to make an "S corp" election. An S corporation is simply a regular corporation which has made an election to be taxed as an S corporation, or "S corp" for short. This election essentially allows the corporation to be taxed as if it was a partnership. This means that the corporate level tax (both on operating income and on liquidating distributions), is eliminated, and the gain is taxed to the shareholders in proportion to their ownership interest. An election now, if it can be effective for a tax year beginning before Jan. 1, 1989, can save you a substantial amount of money on the sale of corporate assets in the future.

IF YOU ARE NOT SELLING YOUR BUSINESS:

Even if you are not selling your business, you may want to make a change in the way that you are doing business. Although in the past it was easy to point to numerous advantages of operating a small business as a corporation, this is no longer the case. Of course, there are still many non-tax reasons for operating as a corporation, but in some cases the tax disadvantages outweigh the tax advantages, and indicate that you might be better off to operate as a partnership or sole proprietorship.

Personal service corporations have been hit the hardest. A personal service corporation is a corporation that performs services in the fields of health, law, engineering, architecture, accounting, performing arts and consulting, among others. The federal tax on these corporations has now been set at a flat rate of 34 percent. Other corporations which do not perform personal services have graduated rates, starting at 15 percent on the first $50,000 of taxable income. Additional rules have made it more difficult for a personal service corporation to maintain a fiscal year end.

Even if you don't have a personal service corporation, it has become harder to justify the corporate form of business in some cases. The minimum franchise tax imposed by the state of California has been raised substantially, so that the tax that was $200 for many years will be $600 in 1989 and $800 in 1990 and thereafter. For all corporations, this means that even if the corporation has no its income because it pays out salaries to its owners, it will still have to face this $800 minimum tax. For inactive corporations, where the owner merely keeps the corporation alive, this change in the California tax law will undoubtedly cause some people to reconsider how badly they want to keep the name.

The S corp election may be advantageous even if you are not considering the sale of your business. This is especially true for owners of corporations who are not active enough to justify distributions in the form of salary or consulting fees. The S corp election will eliminate any corporate level tax, and pass all the income through to the shareholders to be taxed on the shareholder returns. Making the election is not without some disadvantages, all factors must be weighed.

Dissolving your corporation or structuring the sale of your assets requires a thorough understanding of the law in this area and the facts of your particular situation. You should discuss these matters at length with your attorney in order to reach the best result. If you are in one of those situations described, don't wait until the last minute, since the deadline is very soon.

Escrow, title insurance are often misunderstood

RICK WILSON, vice-president and county manager of First American Title Insurance Co., says that escrow and title insurance are, perhaps, two of the most misunderstood services in the real estate market today.

RICK WILSON says that escrow and title insurance may be the two most misunderstood services in the real estate business today.

But whether you are selling or buying a property, it pays to take advantage of a competent third party to put your affairs in order.

In providing escrow service, First American Title Insurance Co. acts as a neutral third party to buyers and sellers or borrowers and lenders.

The agency handles all of the paperwork, while the buyer deposits money and the seller deposits the deed to the property.

While a property is in escrow, Wilson's company researches to make sure there is proper insurance, a pro-rating of taxes, pays off any liens and makes good on any county assessments.

In offering title insurance, First American Title Insurance Co. researches records of the deed and produces the condition of the title.

"That is used in conjunction with escrow to allow the buyer and lender to look at the property prior to closing," offers Wilson, adding that the first document is a preliminary title report.

After the final condition of the title is completed, it is prudent to invest in title insurance to protect against defects in the title.

Sometimes, Wilson says, an unknown heir will appear and make a claim against the title, or perhaps the government will assess a tax on the property.

That is where title insurance comes into play.

Wilson suggests that if you are considering buying or selling real estate, a call to First American Title Insurance Co. should rate high on your list of priorities.

Checking back in with the financial experts

HOWARD NIEMAN
Private Investor

EARLIER THIS year the Carmel Pine Cone sought out some expert advice in the area of finance.

At that time we asked some members of the local financial community to go public with their predictions for 1988. With the year almost over, we thought it would be a good idea to check back in with the specialists.

The prognosticators are: Howard Nieman, private commodities investor; Betsy Thompson, registered investment advisor, Thompson and Qualls Financial Group; Peter Newman, vice president of investments, Prudential-Bache; and John Locke, certified planner and registered investment advisor.

(Unfortunately, Tom Sweeny, owner of Sweeny Investments, Inc. and Richard King, manager of Shearson Lehman Brothers, who had participated in the first interview, were unavailable for comment due to scheduling conflicts.)

How do you feel the stock market will fare during the remainder of 1988?

Nieman: (Earlier in the year Nieman had predicted that the market would reach 1,400 or 1,500 shares by the end of the year. At press time it stood at 2,150).

"I think I'd say the same thing now, it's still a bear market. Basically my opinion hasn't changed. It think it's (1,400-1,500) is a realistic target for a bear market."

Thompson: (Earlier in the year Thompson had predicted that the market would be at 2,300 by the presidential election).

"I think it will be status quo. We might go up to 2,400 or it may drop down to 1,950."

Newman: (Previously Newman had forecast the market at 2,400).

"The highest this year has been 2,200. It will probably be 2,400 in the fourth quarter. I stand by my projections."

Locke: (Said the market would stay between 1,900 and 2,300 for the year).

"I still see 1,900 as a low, but I'm a little more optimistic and think it may go as high as 2,400 or 2,450."

What will happen to the price of gold this year?

'Gold is now below $400 and it's time to add gold to your portfolio as a hedge. It should occupy about 5 percent of your portfolio. For a new investor or for those who do not have gold, now is the time to buy it.'
— John Locke

Nieman: "Gold is still in a bear market. It has gone from a high of $460 down to $407, a drop of 15 percent."

Thompson: "It's hit $400. I consider $400 to be a psychological barrier. If it goes down below $400 it will continue going. Hopefully what we are creating here is a resistance point."

PETER NEWMAN
Prudential-Bache

Nieman: "Interest rates will continue to fall during the next few months as the economy continues to slow."

Thompson: "I think there is a lot of fear out there and that interest rates are going to continue to rise. Some of my clients are selling their homes now because they think they will get a better price."

'I think there is a lot of fear out there and that interest rates are going to continue to rise. Some of my clients are selling their homes now because they think they will get a better price.'
— Betsy Thompson

Newman: "I think they are going to drift lower. I see lower inflation and a slight slowing of business conditions."

What impact do you think the election will have on the stock market?

Nieman: "The economy itself has narrowed the political choices. The size of the national debt means there is little room for further deficit spending. The amount of debt that can be sold is limited — probably we're reaching a limit now that will tie their hands.

"You can't make that many choices anymore, whenever they've raised taxes in the past they've just spent it. The next administration will have to make that decision. If we generate more revenue we need to use it to pay off the debt. If they spend it, the economy will get a lot worse."

Thompson: "Historically, the Republicans mean an up market and the Democrats mean a slightly down market.

"I'm noticing that a lot of my clients are concerned about the election and therefore have moved into money markets and are sitting on the sideline."

Newman: "It doesn't make a whole lot of difference. I don't think it will affect the stock market that much."

Locke: "Again, it's the expectations of the population as a whole. If they perceive a Democratic president as adding taxation it affects the market negatively. If they see an administration as pro-business, then we will see a rally in the stock market."

What do you see as a smart investment at this time?

Nieman: "Government bonds. I say that because going in to an economic slowdown, bonds are traditionally a sound investment and inflation-adjusted returns are very high for the investor."

Thompson: "I've really gone back to basics. For me going back to basics means stocks, bonds, money markets and Treasury bills.

"I'm shying away from exotic tax shelters, such as limited partnerships that give you a five-to-one write-off.

"I look at each individual portfolio and their goals and objectives and that pretty much dictates what investments they need."

Newman: "U.S. Government bonds and municipal bonds. With interest rates drifting lower and an unsure stock market, there has been and ever-increasing interest in government and municipal bonds."

Locke: "You have to have a portfolio across asset class — cash, stocks, bonds, natural resources and precious metals.

"The best investments for today's market would be gold, real estate and stocks. You have to have a contrarian viewpoint in order to succeed in the market."

Tax-deferred annuities a popular low-risk investment

DUE TO the stock market's volatility, the expression "flight to quality" has become more common.

Flight to quality means investors turn away from risky investments such as stocks, options and futures, and reinvest their money into safer products such as annuities, certificates of deposit and bonds.

Tax-deferred annuities have been a popular investment especially in light of the recent economic condition.

A tax-deferred annuity is similar to a savings account, but it has tax advantages. It is an interest earning account issued by a life insurance company and guaranteed by the Legal Reserve System. Some life insurance companies offer their products and services through financial institutions. For example GNA, a life insurance subsidiary of the Weyerhaeuser Co. provides its services through Home Federal's branches.

Traditional savings dollars are taxed every year, whether you spend them or not. With a tax-deferred annuity, you postpone that tax, so you are able to earn extra interest on the dollars normally paid to the IRS. As a result, money in a tax-deferred annuity compounds faster.

One advantage of the tax-deferred annuity is its flexibility. You may be able to make withdrawals, cash out or receive an annuity income anytime depending on the annuity. Early withdrawal fees will also vary with each annuity.

There are generally two types of annuities — a variable annuity and a single premium tax-deferred annuity.

With a variable annuity, the client chooses where his funds will be reinvested. With a single premium tax-deferred annuity there is no risk to principal as the insurance company reinvests the money for you. This type of annuity is similiar to a certificate of deposit. Interest rates will vary with each company for both variable annuities and single premium tax-deferred annuities.

Who would benefit from this kind of investment?

- Someone who is looking to reduce his tax-burden.
- Someone who is interested in a longer-term savings plan.
- Someone who would like to diversify his or her portfolio. (Diversification is important for safety reasons and it may provide an opportunity for increased growth potential over the long term.)
- Someone who wants to save for a major purchase or a child's college education.
- Someone who wants another source of income or savings at retirement.
- Someone who wants to avoid the probate process. Estate planning is made easier. Your named beneficiaries may receive funds without a fee or penalty, and will avoid the expense and delay of the probate process.

Most annuities offer competitive interest rates. They are tax-deferred, and the investor has the opportunity to earn extra money that would have otherwise been lost in taxes. These qualitys make it attractive to a variety of individuals.

There are many different features of annuities offered by various insurance companies.

When considering a tax-deferred annuity, consider the following questions:

- Are there any set-up or annual fees? Each company varies.
- For a single premium annuity, where does the insurance company reinvest the funds? This is important for continued safety and for an ongoing competitive interest rate. For example, some companies may offer a higher rate of return, yet upon further investigation you may find their portfolio consists of higher risk investments, such as "junk bonds."
- Are there any early withdrawal fees? Check for the flexibility of withdrawals. Often higher interest rates are associated with higher withdrawal fees.
- Can you make additional deposits and what is the minimum amount?

- If the company is offering what appears to be an inflated interest rate for a specific economic environment, find out why.
- Check for a "A" rated company or better. A.M. Best is the service that rates insurance companies.

Bank a leader in loans for small businesses, construction

IN THIS presidential election year, as in all such years, the volatility and uncertainty of our economy comes to the forefront.

As a general rule, interest rates start to climb, housing starts to slow down and people seem to take a "wait-and-see" attitude.

Obviously with new leadership comes change and no one can predict the future. One thing seems to be constant, however, and that is the fact that real estate values in California continue to escalate, especially here on the Monterey Peninsula.

This, coupled with the fact that 700,000 people are moving into our state every year, means that housing, transportation, jobs and services will continue to be required.

Monterey County Bank has been a leader in Monterey County during the past year in making Small Business Administration (SBA) and construction loans. It is a locally owned and managed commercial bank, anxious to develop a personal, knowledgeable and cooperative partnership with our customers. Our SBA lending program can provide up to $1 million in financing for working capital, equipment, real estate or a combination of the three.

As Fred Sarciaux, owner of Famsar Jewelry Corp. and one of our SBA borrowers said, "I believe the marriage between the SBA and a locally owned bank such as Monterey County Bank is the catalyst for the success of small business. Small business is the backbone of America. My SBA loan has provided financing for the remodel and expansion of Famsar, as well as giving me reserve funds for the lean times ahead."

Small Business Administration financing can be the answer for your business needs, too. The Monterey Peninsula needs your creative ideas and our growing population needs your services.

MONTEREY COUNTY Bank Chairman and CEO Charles Chrietzberg is proud of the bank's record in the past year in being a leader on the peninsula in granting Small Business Administration and construction loans.

Financial services company adds to community cultural resources

THERE IS increasing recognition that saving and planning for the future are required, now that the fastest growing part of our population is over 55. Readers of this supplement have lots of reasons to enjoy this marvelous area, and it's important to provide a secure means for their lifestyle which is "world class" in local access to natural beauty and cultural activities.

While individuals make their own preparations for a secure and well-funded future, diversified financial services company with an office on Garden Road has contributed to community cultural resources.

Metropolitan Life Foundation recently provided $20,000 as a grant to the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art. The funds are being used to acquire original paintings by contemporary Hispanic and Native American artists. Previously displayed in a collection titled "Native American Artists and the Myth," these paintings will be added to the permanent collection.

This type of support for local community organizations is characteristic of Metropolitan Life, according to John Reiter, local branch manager. He and Paul Barrish, recently appointed as an account representative with Metropolitan Life, have commented that an active involvement in com-

Mortgage company helps buyers cut down on their shopping time

By DAVID LELAND

WHEN BUYING a home or business, people sell themsleves short if they don't let a mortgage company find them the best financing deal, according to Don Nelson, president of Nelson, Spaulding, Mercurio and Brown, Inc.

"Our main purpose that we have is to cut down their shopping time," says Nelson, who maintains mortgage offices in Carmel and Monterey. "That's our job."

In simple terms, a mortgage company represents many different lenders and can put the buyer together with the institution that's right for him.

"We try to find the program that best fits them at the lowest possible interest rate," says Nelson, who opened his business about two years ago and before that served as a commercial banker.

Nelson's firm utilizes a variety of banks, savings and loan operations and private lenders in coming up with the best loan institution.

"The first thing that we do is try and find out if a person wants a fixed or adjustable rate," he explains.

Fixed rate refers to an interest rate that remains constant throughout the life of their loan.

An adjustable rate can go up or down depending on the cost of funds rate, and usually has a spread of about five points.

"Rates have gone up slightly in the past few months," says Nelson. "But good loans are still available."

Nelson says that the determining factor for which type of loan a person desires is how well they can budget their finances. In other words, if they know that each month their

Also, you may find some ratings that are mistakes — now is the time to have those removed.

• Installment payments. Credit card, boat and car payments should be reduced wherever possible to the amount that you owe only 10 months or less on the loan.

With 10 months or less owed, the bank will not penalize you for payments you have not yet made. In other words, that amount will not be figured into your financial profile when applying for a loan, says Tim Haas, loan officer with GMAC mortgage.

• Salary status. If you are due for a raise, try to get it before you apply for a loan. If you can't get the actual raise before you apply for the loan, ask your employer to write you a letter of commitment concerning your raise.

• Gifts. It is important that you deposit any cash gifts you receive toward your downpayment in the bank at least three months prior to applying for a loan, says Haas.

Anything shorter than three months often prompts a lending isntitution to question your ability to repay a substantial loan because normally your balance is substantially lower.

Also, be sure to get a letter from the donor that the gift is obligation-free and need not be repaid.

• Bankruptcy. If you have declared bankruptcy within the last two years it will be extremely hard for you to qualify for a loan, unless you have estaablished credit during the past two years.

• Renters. If you are a renter it is important that you have a good relationship with your landlord.

Often the lending institution wil contact your landlord to ask about your payment record. Paying rent on time surely works in your favor.

• Co-mortgagers. Make sure that any person owning the home with you is aware that they must also qualify for the loan.

loan payments will be the same they can live accordingly.

In addition to finding fianancing terms for home buyers, Nelson also develops loan packages on commercial buildings and short-term loans for business purposes.

Another popular service of his mortgage company is a line of credit. With this type of loan, a person gets his property appraised and develops a line of credit based on that figure.

For example, persons who have a home or business with $100,000 in equity can come to Nelson and set up a deal where they simply write a check for, say 75 percent of the equity value, and that money is then deposited in their account.

Nelson adds that the only money that is charged interest is the money that is transferred into their account.

The startling factor abut a mortgage company is that the customer seldom pays for the advantage of using the organization.

"Because we do 75 percent of the work for the lender, the lender gives us a percentage of that fee," says Nelson, referring to the loan application fee charged by banks. "Ordinarily it doesn't cost any more to come to us."

Foundation adds to local culture

munity cultural activities are an ongoing part of corporate citizenship. In fact, Metropolitan with in excess of $110 billion assets under management, insures or administers coverage for 42 million people in the United States and Canada; during 1987; the Met Life Foundation contributed nearly $10 million to support a wide range of health, civic, educational and cultural activities.

As a new member of the Metropolitan team, Barrish brings a long history of community involvement; he served with the Carmel Highlands Volunteer Fire Department while attending the Naval Postgraduate School, helped with an accreditation survey for Carmel High School, is active with Carmel Presbyterian Church and a member of Carmel Rotary and the Monterey Peninsula Museum of Art.

The combination of corporate citizenship backed by Metropolitan's sensitivity in contributing to cultural activity, and local representatives who are sensitive to community values helps make the Monterey Peninsula a great place to live!
